BERLIN DEALT BLOW IN RAF NIGHT ATTACK

BOMBERS CONTINUE DAYLIGHT FEINTS ACROSS CHANNEL

BY ROBERT STURDEVANT

London, Oct. 18 (AP) — Allied bombers thundered back and forth across the English channel today in fresh challenges to the enemys aerial defense after night attacks by the RAF on objectives in Berlin, western Germany and occupied territory.

There was some indication that today's excursions were large scale feints rather than a full dress renewal of the aerial bombardment which has been slackened since American Flying Fortresses shattered German ball bearing production at Schweinfurt last Thursday.

Thunderbolts See Action

Still the heavy formations provided a great show for coastal areas as the bombers, interspersed with fighters, traced sweeping vapor trails across the sky in forenoon, noon and afternoon sorties.

The U. S. Eighth Air Force announced tonight that American P-47 Tunderbolts had made a series of offensive sweeps over enemy territory, and blasted down one Nazi fighter plane which had attempted to make a getaway. Three Tunderbolts were reported missing, but force headquarters said it was not believed that any were lost through enemy action.

(U. S. Monitors reported that the Deutschlandsender, main Nazi radio in the Berlin area, the Danish and Kalundborg stations, also under Nazi domination, and the Berlin DNB wireless transmitters ceased operations tonight—indications that RAF bombers were out over those areas again.)

London Has Alarm

Mosquito squadrons dealt Berlin its first blow since Oct. 9 last night and also pounded unannounced targets in western Germany, while fighter planes roamed over northern France to shoot up air fields and communications lines.

Spitfires of the RAF Fighter Command also spent a busy day pulling the beard of the German air force over Europe and shot down three enemy planes, although the Germans showed little disposition to fight and combat was hampered by cloud and icing conditions.

London had its second straight air raid alarm last night as the Germans made three retaliatory stabs—against East Anglia, the southeast coast of England and the capital itself.

Whole Crew Saved On Torpedoed Ship

San Francisco, Oct. 18 (AP) — The entire complement of a medium-sized merchant vessel, torpedoed by an enemy submarine in the south Pacific in August, has arrived here safely, the 12th naval district reported today.

The crew included 42 merchant seaman and 15 naval armed guardsmen.

The vessel put into an Allied port under its own power despite a hole in its side which was described by Ensign Broward Williams of Tallahassee, Fla., as 'big enough to put a small ship through." Williams commanded the armed guard.

War Loan Over Top By $3,943,000,000

Washington, Oct. 18. (AP)—The $15,000,000,000 third war loan went over the top by $3,943,000,000.

The treasury in announcing a final tabulation tonight of last month's record financing campaign reported that of the $18,943,000,000 total $5,377,000,000 was subscribed by individual investors.

Hull And Eden Arrive In Moscow To Attend Tri-Power Conference

BY HENRY C. CASSIDY

Moscow, Oct. 18 (AP)—U. S. Secretary of State Cordell Hull and British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden have arrived in Moscow for the long-awaited tripower conference with Soviet Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov, it was announced tonight.

(The conference presumably will seek an agreement on war objectives and post-war collaboration between the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union.)

Hull and Eden were accompanied by W. Averell Harriman, newly named U. S. ambassador to the Soviet Union; Green Hackworth, U. S. state department counsel; James Dunn, political adviser; Maj. Gen. John Dean, U. S. army; William Strang, British assistant under-secretary for foreign affairs; and Lieut. Gen. Sir Hastings Ismay, chief of staff to the British minister of defense.

Given a ceremonial welcome when they alighted in midafternoon at the Moscow airdrome, Hull and Eden in personal chats with Molotov offered to go to work immediately, and an appointment was made for the first session of the conference.

A sparkling Indian summer sun warmed the airport for the arrival of the members of the American and British parties who were chilled by their day long flight in Liberators from Teheran, Iran, over the Elburz mountains, Caspian sea and the steppes of southern Russia.

American, British and Soviet flags flew over the airport gates. The Red army band played the national anthems of the three great allied powers while a smart guard of honor, with bayonets gleaming in the sunlight, marched

COAL RELEASED TO HEAT HOMES

Mines In Eight States To Ship One Day's Output By Rail

Washington, Oct. 18 (AP) — To improve the coal outlook for householders, more than 1,800 coal mines in eight states have been ordered to deliver one entire day's output to retailers who receive their shipments by rail.

This announcement was made today by Secretary Ickes who is solid fuels administrator. He said it would mean between 300,000 and 400,000 tons of bituminous coal would go to these retailers and though it "will not provide enough coal for all household demands," it will "relieve pressure in many of the critical areas which have been without coal since the weather turned cool."

Large quantities of coal have been rushed to Great Lakes ports for shipment before winter closes the lakes, and tonnage which otherwise would have gone to all-rail retailers has been diverted for shipment by water.

The bituminous mines who received the order are in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Kentucky, Ohio, Northern Tennessee, Virginia, Indiana and Illinois. Those states produce more than 80 per cent of the nation's coal.

A whole day's production would be 1,770,000 tons but it was explained that much of this coal is dug in captive mines and mines that ship by truck.

JAPS REPULSED AT FINSCHHAFEN

Attempt To Land Troops At Captured Base Is Smashed

Allied Headquarters in the Southwest Pacific, Tuesday, Oct. 19 (AP)—An attempt by the Japanese to land at Finschhafen, recently captured enemy base on the coast of New Guinea, has been repulsed, General MacArthur announced today.

Finschhafen was captured by the Australian Ninth Division October 2.

The defending Australian troops destroyed most of the Japanese attackers in a sharp fight.

The Australians also repulsed two counterattacks north of Finschhafen.

The importance of Finschhafen was attested by General MacArthur's declaration that its capture eliminated all defensive values of enemy-held centers to the north and west as far up the New Guinea coast as Madang.

The enemy struck again at Oro Bay, 50 miles south of Buna, New Guinea. Twenty-four of the 35 planes they sent against Allied shipping there were shot down.

South Pacific forces sank a troop-laden barge and a coastal vessel and attacked Solomon Island airdromes in a continuation of the aerial blitz.

Today's communique reported an additional 19 Japanese planes shot down in the fighting over Wewak, New Guinea last Saturday.

University Hospital Surgeon Shot While Hunting Pheasants

Yale, Mich., Oct. 18 (AP)—Dr. Donald A. Pollock, 36-year-old surgeon on the staff of University hospital, Ann Arbor, was shot and critically wounded at dusk tonight while hunting pheasants. Dr. Pollock's hunting companion, Homer P. Stapleford, said the surgeon stumbled and fell while preparing to shoot a bird. His shotgun discharged, the shot penetrating his chest.

SOVIETS MAKE NEW GAINS IN DNIEPER LOOP

TRAP CLOSING ON HITLER'S MEN IN LOWER RUSSIA

BY JUDSON O'QUINN

London, Oct. 18 (AP)—The Red army, increasing its major threat to trap hundreds of thousands of Germans in lower Russia, smashed ahead 4.3 miles today and overran 23 more villages deep inside the Dnieper river loop, where Berlin broadcasts admitted axis reverses under the impact of 300,000 attacking Russians.

The Soviet troops now are nearing the Dnepropetrovsk-Kiev trunk railway, supplying the Germans protecting the Dnieper bend to the east and the Crimea in the south.

Sand Clogs Guns

A Moscow broadcast communique recorded by the Soviet Monitor, also announced that Russian troops who had crossed the Dnieper in a new drive southwest of Gomel now had turned northward and were striking toward Rechitsa, "27 miles west of Gomel, in an effort to snap the enemy's rail lifeline to Poland.

North of Kiev the Russians "considerably improved their positions" beyond the Dnieper's west bank, it said, in the encircling drive on the Ukraine capital.

At Melitopol, gateway to the Crimea, one of the grimmest fights of the war flamed through its sixth day inside the shattered city. Moscow said the Red army assault units, fighting with bayonet and grenade in a blinding sandstorm that clogged their guns, had "captured large quantities of war materials."

The Germans had been reported rushing troops up from the Crimea to Melitopol to hold that gateway from the armies of Gen. Feodor Tolbukhin, whose troops already are battling inside the city, and Gen. Rodoin Y. Malinovsky's forces moving down from captured Zaporozhe in the north.

Losses Admitted

But this death grapple southeast of the Dnieper bend may be nullified by an expanding Soviet breakthrough to the northwest inside the Dnieper loop.

The gravity of the German situation in the loop was indicated by the radio utterances of German military commentators. One Col. Ernst Von Hammer, acknowledged that the Germans had been forced to fall back under the nuremical superiority of 20 Russian divisions and numerous Soviet tank brigades.

Pyatikhatka, 40 miles west of Dniepropetrovsk and 50 southeast of Kremenchug, appeared to be an immediate objective of the Russians surging into the Dnieper bend. It is a junction on the Dnepropetrovsk-Kiev trunk line, and on the railway winding south to Krivoi-Rog, Kherson, and the Crimean peninsula.

Soviet pressure at key points on a 750-mile front prevented the Germans from rushing reinforcements to any single sector on a large-scale, and Moscow dispatches said the Russian threat to Kiev now had grown so acute that the Germans were bringing in troops from Poland, France, the Netherlands, and Denmark.

BEEF ON HOOF, NONE FOR PAN

Cattle Jam Stockyards, But Few Are Ready For Slaughter

Kansas City, Oct. 18 (AP)—Cattle, cattle everywhere but mighty little for the steak pan.

So it was at the stockyards today where 57,000 cattle were jammed into pens—the largest run in the nation's history.

The first killing frost has hit the western range country and stockmen, faced with a uncertain feed situation, are thinning their herds for winter months.

The 57,000 head, mostly stockers and feeders for reconsignment to the cornbelt for fattening in feedlots before slaughtering, bettered by 5,000 the previous record established on Aug. 27, 1923 when the bottom dropped out of the market. Chicago's top run was 49,128 on Nov. 16, 1908.

There was small cheer for the man and woman whose chief interest in beef is pan-fried steaks. For there was an unusually small number of slaughtering cattle in the run only 15 loads of grain-fed and 60 loads of grass-fed cattle.

Sault Blanketed By Foot Of Snow

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich. Oct. 18 (AP)—A three-day storm left the Sault Ste. Marie area under a 12.4 inch blanket of snow today after the heaviest fall on record for this month.

The storm began Saturday night with the heaviest fall on Sunday when 9.5 inches were reported.

Several hunters were trapped in the woods by the snow but were rescued after snow plows cleared paths through the forests. Highway traffic and communications were not interrupted.

LIQUOR RATIONS ARE UNCHANGED

No. 3 And "B" Units On Cards Become Valid This Thursday

Lansing, Oct 18 (AP) — Liquor purchase privileges will remain unchanged when the No. 3 and "B" units on ration cards become valid Thursday, and the quotas will remain the same until November 20, the Liquor Control Commission announced today.

Currently valid No. 2 and "A" purchase units will expire at midnight Wednesday, a day later than originally scheduled, the commission announced.

Restrictions on the sale of wine will be removed as of Thursday, it disclosed. Wine of more than 16 per cent alcoholic content now is rationed.

The No. 3 unit on a ration card will allow the purchase of a quart, two pints or a fifth gallon of any item on the price board, as at present, and the lettered or "dividend" unit will allow the purchase of a quart, "fifth" or two pints of any item other than dry gin and whisky, the announcement said.

Commission members said they have arranged a conference for tomorrow afternoon with officials of the Office of Price Administration (OPA) which has objected to their proposal to allow establishments selling liquor by the glass to replenish their stocks with liquor purchased in other states.

The OPA has protested that the commission's plan to collect a "markup" from the licensees equal to 31 per cent of the purchase price would be in conflict with its rules. It contended the licensees would buy the liquor out of the state at ceiling or approximately the ceiling prices allowable under OPA rules, and that for the state to collect a markup would be a violation of price fixing regulations.

Morgenthau Tours U. S. Battle Fronts, Checks On Currency

Washington, Oct. 18. (AP)—Treasury Secretary Morgenthau was disclosed tonight to be on an aerial tour of war fronts with his monetary expert, Harry D. White, and his confidential assistant, Fred Smith.

The trio arrived in Algiers last Friday, but no further information was available as to their present whereabouts or their itinerary. The tour is expected to last several weeks.

Treasury officials in Washington said that while the secretary would meet financial leaders of the various governments visited, his tour would be concerned briefly with fiscal matters of American military operations and war bond buying by officers and men in the field.

The fiscal matters presumably relate to the recently-inaugurated allied military currency, printed in this country and used for the first time by both United States and British forces in the invasion of Sicily.

Quality Specified For Shoe Outsoles

Washington, Oct. 18 (AP) — To prevent wastage of critical materials in shoes of inferior quality, the War Production Board today established minimum quality specifications for outsoles on all footwear, whether made of leather, rubber of synthetics.

The specifications include standards for abrasion, stitch tearing, effect of water, "crackkiness" and "tackiness." The tests were drawn up by the National Bureau of Standards after exhaustive research on leather, rubber and synthetic soles now placed on civilian footwear.

BALKAN FRONT ERUPTS AGAIN FOR ROMMEL

YUGOSLAV ARMIES LAUNCH WIDE OFFENSIVE

BY A. I. GOLDBERG

London, Oct. 18 (AP) — Three guerrilla armies—Yugoslav "regulars" under Gen. Draja Mahailovic, Gen. Josip (Tito) Broz' red-starred bands, and a resurgent Albanian guerrilla army — were reported locked in bitter battles with Marshal Erwin Rommel's forces over a wide western Balkan front tonight.

Mahailovic's forces, launching their first big offensive since the German occupation of garrisons formerly held by Italians, was said by government leaders at Cairo to be smashing through toward the Danube River loop in northeastern Serbia after capturing two towns in a definite menace to German river traffic.

Rail Links Wrecked

Tito's liberation army, wrecking rail links and trains in a retreat from Zenica, in Bosnia, continued their attacks elsewhere against reinforced German garrisons between Sinj and the port of Split on the Dalmatian coast, and near Bakar, southeast of the Susack-Fiume port area, a free Yugoslav radio broadcast said.

The newest drain on Rommel's already thinly-drawn forces in the Balkans was in Albania. Some 35,000 Nazis were reported in Cairo dispatches to have been rushed from Macedonia to Albania to reinforce German forces under almost daily guerrilla attacks.

There was no hint that the forces of Tito and Mihailovic, long at odds, had joined to oppose the invaders of their homeland, but it appeared that some of their activities might overlap.

Fighting back desperately against these newest threats to his Balkan forces, Rommel sent his planes over Serbia and into the interior in fierce raids on guerrilla-held villages.

Famine Threatens Greece

German raiders struck also at the area north of the Albanian border.

Albanian guerrilla forces, putting up a staunch fight in the Valona coastal district, have driven the Germans from Drashovica into the surrounding hills, the Cairo dispatches said.

Meanwhile, information reaching here from Greece disclosed that a repetition of the 1941 famine in which thousands died threatened the population there unless freedom comes quickly or larger food supplies are sent.

RAISE IS VOTED TO DEPENDENTS

Families Of Service Men Listed For $50-$30-$20 Allowances

Washington, Oct. 18 (AP) — A unanimous House vote today put both branches of congress on record as favoring payments of $50 a month to wives of enlisted service men, $30 a month for their first dependent child and $20 extra for each additional child.

Present law provides $50 for the wife, $12 for the first child and $10 for additional children, with $22 of the total—the same as required by the new legislation—coming from the service's man's monthly pay.

Senate action on House amendments is all that now stands between the bill and its dispatch to the White House for signing.

Rep. Clason (D-Mass.), said the $50-$30-$20 proposal was in line with living costs and would afford dependents of service men only the essentials necessary to maintain them, in offering it, he opposed a military committee recommendation for $50 for a wife, $25 for the first child, $20 for a second child and $15 for additional children.

The committee's recommendation, Clason told the House, assumes that a third child can live for less than a first or second child and conflicts with surveys showing the minimum cost of maintaining a child was $19.56 a month.

ANDREW LAHTI DIES

Marquette, Mich., Oct. 18. (AP)—Former Sheriff Andrew O. Lahti, 45, died this afternoon in St. Luke's hospital after suffering a heart attack Sunday. He served three terms as sheriff of Marquette county, from 1930 through 1935.

SENATE FAVORS POST-WAR PLAN

Foreign Policy Measure Assured Of Majority In Test Poll

BY JACK BELL

Washington, Oct. 18. (AP)—Fifty senators—one more than a majority—find the Connally resolution on post war foreign policy substantially acceptable to them and would support it on a showdown vote, an Associated Press poll disclosed today.

With a large bloc of Senators declining to commit themselves because they want to write more specific language into the proposal, a canvass showed that only 6 of the 56 members willing to express their views are unalterably opposed to the Connally measure in its present form.

These six include Senators Wheeler (D-Mont.), Smith (D-S.C.), Reynolds (D-N.C.), Willis (R-Ind.), Johnson (R-Calif.) and Lafollette (Prog-Wis.).

Approved by a sub-committee, the resolution will be submitted to the full foreign relations committee tomorrow in this form:

"Resolved by the senate of the United States:

"That the war against all our enemies be waged until complete victory is achieved;

"That the United States co-operate with its comrades-in-arms in securing a just and honorable peace;

"That the United States, acting through its constitutional processes, join with free and sovereign nations in the establishment and maintenance of international authority with power to prevent aggression and to preserve the peace of the world."

Almost every shade of viewpoint was represented among the 31 Democrats and 19 Republicans who found themselves in substantial agreement on the proposal.

Germany To Trade Disabled Prisoners

London, Oct. 18 (AP)—The foreign office said tonight that the return of American and British disabled prisoners of war from Germany under an exchange was under way and the first parties were being embarked at Goeteborg, Sweden, for the voyage home.

The announcement said that more than 4,000 war prisoners from the United States and the British Empire would be returned and a like number of Germans from prison camps in Britain, the United States and Canada would be sent back to the Reich.

One group of disabled Germans already has been transported in a hospital ship from a British port to Goeteborg.

Only 17 of the returning allied prisoners are Americans, the foreign office statement said, explaining that this was due to the relatively small number of United States prisoners taken thus far in the war by Germany.

Lost Ration Books Need No Postage

Washington, Oct. 18 (AP)—Finders of lost ration books may drop them in the mail hereafter without prepaying postage or enclosing them in envelopes, the Office of Price Administration announced today.

Under arrangement with the post office department, a lost book will be delivered to the person whose name and address appears on the cover, on payment of a five-cent postage-due charge. Books will be forwarded to the nearest local rationing board when the addressee cannot be found.

GERMANS ARE PUSHED BACK TOWARD ROME

ENEMY BURNS UP SUPPLIES, SET FOR RETREAT

BY EDWARD KENNEDY

Allied Headquarters, Algiers, Oct. 18. (AP)—Important new allied landings of men and material have been made on the Italian mainland in recent days, it was disclosed tonight as the forces of Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark and Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery slowly pushed the Germans back in heavy fighting.

Thanks partly to this improved supply, it was announced today that Clark's fifth army veterans of Salerno had driven beyond the Volturno River and "firmly occupied" the towns of Cancello, Ruviano and Nerrone, while Montgomery's eighth was stabbing westward through the Apennine Mountains toward Rome.

Air Defense Feeble

As the fifth and eighth armies pushed the Germans back in yesterday's fighting, some fires were observed behind the enemy's lines, indicating the destruction of supply dumps in anticipation of a quick move backward.

The Nazis at the front continued to fight as stubbornly as usual, however, while these behind-the-line operations were in progress.

The enemy's next stand on the west coast is likely to be inland from Gaeta and along the Garigliano River, which is some 20 miles north of the Volturno and about 80 airline miles from Rome.

As a result of continued allied air attacks on German airfields, the enemy now is dispersing his feeble remaining strength on innumerable small airstrips.

Great progress has been made in getting the port of Naples into shape.

Engineers Join Fight

When the fifth army was almost driven into the sea by a furious German counter-attack a few days after the landing at Salerno, allied engineers dropped their normal work to join in the fight which saved the beachhead, it was disclosed today.

British engineers who took over the operation of one section of railway ran a train through a station held by German troops to liberate a group of 300 prisoners of war at a point farther up the line.

Some air fields have been constructed within one day after the area was captured from the enemy.

American troops captured Nerrone and Ruviano on dominating heights north of the Volturno after fierce and fluid fighting in which units frequently became isolated. Cancello, formerly an important axis air base eight miles from the mouth of the Volturno, fell to a British force in an advance from the sea. Both the British and Americans had to

CURFEW TAKES EFFECT TONIGHT

All Children Under 16 Must Be Off Streets By 10 O'clock

Escanaba's new curfew ordinance became effective today, and tonight at 10 o'clock all children under 16 years of age must be off the streets except under certain conditions.

City Manager George Bean, who was ordered by the city council to arrange for blowing the necessary curfew signals, said yesterday the following signals would be blown from the steam plant whistle:

1—Preliminary signal at 9:45 p. m. of variable tone.

2—Curfew at 10 o'clock, a blast of steady tone for about one minute.

The signal at 10 o'clock requires all children under 16 to be off the streets with the following exceptions:

Those who are accompanied by their parents, their guardian, or adults in whose custody they have been given; children returning from a school, municipal or church function; children whose employment makes it necessary for them to be on the street after that hour, and who carry witten authority to that effect.

Coal Crisis Eased As Striking Miners Go Back To Work

(By The Associated Press)

An acute coal shortage affecting household heating as well as war production plants showed signs last night (Monday) of tapering off as striking miners straggled back to work and the government ordered a day's output of more than 1,800 mines speeded to waiting retailers.

Secretary Ickes as solid fuels administrator, announced that most of the bituminous mines east of the Mississippi have been told to divert between 300,000 and 400,000 tons to retailers from whom they now have unfilled orders.

Attributing critical shortages of coal for household use in many sections chiefly to effects of coal strikes last spring, Ickes said "we have never recovered" from the loss of 25,000,000 tons of coal during that time.

In Gadsen, Ala., two more open hearth furnaces were taken out of production at the Republic Steel Corporation plant, increasing the number of idle steelmakers to seven in that area and slicing daily ingot production by about 3,500 tons.

A steady but slow back-to-work movement in the coal fields gave promise, however, or more fuel. Eighteen of 81 union mines, employing about 3,500 of the 22,000 union miners, resumed operations. More were returning to work in two of Indiana's closed mines, State Labor Commissioner Thomas R. Hutson said. He expected all 17 shafts which closed last week would be operating tomorrow.

Meantime, Appalachian and Pennsylvania coal operators announced they would oppose the United Mine Workers' wage agreement with Illinois operators at a public hearing before the war labor board Thursday.

The Illinois agreement, they contended, would reduce the present production rate in many mines and the overall production in the Appalachian region.

Germany Invited Turks To Garrison Dodecanese

BY PERTINAX
North American Newspaper Alliance

Washington— A strange offer of the Berlin government has lately been submitted to the Turkish government at Ankara through Ambassador Franz Von Papen: nothing less than an invitation to garrison the Dodecanese with Turkish troops.

That step was taken by Nazi diplomacy with a view to sparing the German high command the trouble to replace the Italian armed forces in occupation of those islands with its own. Moreover, Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop and Von Papen had also in mind to spread discord between Turkey and the United Nations, to tear to pieces the treaty of alliance concluded in October, 1939, which still binds British and Turks nothwithstanding the surrender of France, another signatory of that instrument.

The Dodecanese islands are inhabited by Greeks and their annexation to Greece, at the end of the war, is taken as a foregone conclusion, although the United Nations are not yet pledged in that respect to King George and his cabinet. The Turks lost them to Italy in 1912 when they also lost Libya.

Turkey Spurned Offer

The Turkish government's reaction to the German offer has been all that could be expected in the circumstances. It was pointed out to the Nazi alurer that through the armistice signed with the Badoglio government by America, England and Russia, Italy had given up all her rights and her interests in the Dodecanese, that the islands were lawfully at the disposal of the Allies and that Turkey had no intention to interfere with that state of affairs.

The whole incident must have impressed the leaders of the Turkish republic. President Ismet Inonu, Prime Minister Shukru Saraocoglu and Foreign Minister Numan Menemencioglu, with the helplessness of the German position. About one month ago, the official diplomacy of Hitler attempted, with Japan as an intermediary, to entice Russia in a separate peace—and there is reason to believe that the transfer of Russia of all controls over the Dardanelles was among the terms which would have been conceded to Moscow. Disappointed in that endeavor, the Germans seemed to have changed their tune, as far as the Turks are concerned. They have tried to tempt them with prospects, however, futile, or territorial acquisitions.

2,000,000 Turks Mobilized

As to the future relations of Turkey with the Allies, the understanding arrived at by the London cabinet with Portugal about the use of the bases in the Azores during this war underlines a fairly obvious analogy. The Azores will stand, henceforward, as an advanced defense against submarine attacks on the sea lanes leading to the Mediterranean. But what about the sea lane leading out of the Mediterranean into the Black Sea? The Dardanelles and the Bosphorus are in the keeping of Turkey bound to England in the same way as Portugal by a treaty of Alliance which in London has not yet been held incompatible with the continuous of Turkish neutrality.

That Turkey, which benefits by lend-lease deliveries, has nevertheless helped the common cause cannot be denied. One million Turkish soldiers have been fully mobilized for more than two years. Thus did the Ankara government effectively contribute to holding back Hitler whenever he planned to unleash an attack on the middle east.

Turkey is delivering chrome to the Germans on a more and more restricted scale. But once all due recognition of the Turkish attitude has been made, it remains that the persistent closing of the straits against Allied shipping goes a long way to substantiate the old claim of the Roman-off emperors, probably revived today by Marshal Stalin, that a great power like Russia cannot suffer to have its sea communications with the outside world permanently subjected to the decisions of a foreign government which, in the pursuit of its national interests, chose in 1940 to be hostile and now clings to neutrality rules.

The problem is sure to be put on the agenda at the Moscow conference when the foreign ministers of the United States, Great Britain and Russia meet.

The unidentified plane approached from the sea toward the naval air station at Barbers Point, the navy announced. It appeared to be a small float-type monoplane.

Mother Nature Is "Putting By" For Winter Days

PARADE OF SEASONS
By Fern Berry

Mother Nature goes about the "putting by" for the coming of winter, just as our grandmothers used to do. First she turns the season into a gala affair, painting the roadsides with crimson and scarlet, brown, russet and grey. The forests become a riot of color, and up and down the hillsides and country lanes the sumach marches, bearing flaming torches.

The milkweed is spreading its silken floss, and wild asters and goldenrod are making their last brave stand against killing frosts. Here and there a purple or a golden plume of bloom still stands but mostly they are but poor ghost flowers.

The ripened fruit of the hawthorn and the wild rose hips gleam in the autumn sunshine. A few Clintonia berries remain in the deep woods, like gems on the bosom of a fading dowager.

The silken web of the spiderfolk covers with an intricate pattern of lace the wayside shrubs. In sheltered places a few closed gentians remain to add a splash of color to the mature brown of the coarse swamp grasses.

Food For Birds

"Knobs" of daisies and sunflowers offer a rich harvest to the migrating birds. Later, when winter is really here, the junco and the snowbirds will eat the remaining seeds from these granaries of the wild.

The woods are beautiful in these days of Autumn. Ferns still stand proudly, awaiting that voice which bids them "kneel down" to be covered by the blanket of dry leaves. Each old fungi decorated stump, or green velvet covered old log, has a clump of these lovely woodland ferns beside it. The little glades where white birches grow, are fern grown, and they stand beside the old oaks and maples, where the delicate grey-green lichen adds to the picture of the beauty of the woods in Autumn. In Upper Michigan, the huge grey rocks of the Lake Superior region are covered with moss and lichen, and with a beautiful and delicate rock fern, lower growing than the high woodland ferns and more delicate.

Black bear, raccoon, skunk and woodchucks eat heartily of the foods to be found in the forest and fields at this season, for soon they must drop into a long sleep which will last until King Winter has blown his last icy breath upon the frozen land.

"Spoiled" Black Bears

The black bear of Michigan have become spoiled in the areas where the Civilian Conservation Corps were located. Great pits where garbage was dumped each day, attracted these big black fellows and they came from the swamps and forests and eat of the garbage, every night, during the summer. This had become one of the tourist attractions of Upper Michigan. At Camp Cusino in the Cusino Wildlife area, as many as seven bear have been seen at the pits in one evening.

They are quite likely to stay awake a bit later in the season, in these localities where a free lunch counter is spread for them and when they do retire, are sleek and fat.

The bluejays and squirrels make the early winter woods merry with their noisy chatter. The bluejay is the self appointed watchdog of the woods. He will scream out to tell the other birds and animals that an intruder is nigh. Many a buck deer owes his life to the warning cry of the bluejay, during hunting season.

The gold of the blooming witch-hazel is spread on the landscape, catching the first of the snow flakes in long slender fingers, never knowing that the chill will turn them brown and stiff.

The golden tapestries of the witch-hazel are banners hung bravely by summer in her last stand against winter.

Seeds Travel

The seeds of the witch-hazel do not like to stay at home. Nor do they travel by flying as some of the seeds do. With a little "plop" they leave the parent plant and sail for as many as twenty feet in any direction, to land safely and start a new witch-hazel shrub.

Birds and small animals will eat these round, hard little nuts and relish them when other food is scarce.

In Upper Michigan the witch-hazel is scarce, but the hazelnut shrub is plentiful. Likewise the sumach is scarce in this part of Michigan, but is replaced by the red-berried elder which adds greatly to the beauty of the summer roadsides. However, the red berried elder does not carry her fruit over into the cold months of winter. The Mountain ash, so plentiful in Upper Michigan, offers to wandering flocks of Evening grosbeaks, crossbills and other winter birds, a rich feast all winter. The winter of 1941-42 found the mountain ash, the beech mast, the hazel-nuts and in fact, almost every kind of winter food, scarce.

In the areas where oaks grow, the red deer find them a friend indeed, for they provide acorns, which are the corn of the deer herds. Deer feeding on a plentiful acorn crop will go into their winter yards, sleek and fat and in good condition.

Squirrels will store a great deal of food for winter. More than a bushel of grains, acorns, beechnuts, hazelnuts and weed seeds have been found in the storehouses of squirrels. A half bushel of buckwheat in a hollow "squirrel tree" led the interested woodcutter to investigate the source of the grain. To his amazement no buckwheat had been grown nearer than a mile and a half from the woods—and the grain had been grown on his own farm.

Squirrels often get into holes in the roof of a house, and have been known to scare timid folk who feared that their homes were haunted. And haunted they were, by the spirit of the summer woodlands.

Ivy Vines Beautiful

In the low swamp lands, the poison ivy vines add to the beauty of the late Autumn scene. These vines, dried and brown, bear puffs of wool which catch and hold the hoar frost and the early snow. The wild cucumber vines, growing high in the elms, and alder-grown river bottoms, rattle in a ghastly fashion as the cold winds whisper through the trees.

The alders are white with the woolly "plant lice" said to forecast the depth of the coming snows, making a sober background for the yellow of the willows and red of the osiers. These colors add a bit of life to the winter landscape.

In normal years the swamps and marshes have filled with water during the fall rains. This is well for the muskrats and for the beaver. Their dome shaped houses dot the marshes and the bayous of the larger rivers. A busy colony of beaver will have dammed a small stream and formed a little lake where their houses are built for the coming of winter. When the autumn season has been a dry one, the muskrats will burrow into the banks of a stream, and thus become "bank rats". The entrance is below the water line but the actual nest is high and dry and snug unless flood waters come to fill it with the waters of the creek.

Although the Beaver and rat colonies are interesting and busy places, you will be fortunate to catch a glimpse of the muskrat in early winter for they move about in subterranean channels.

Weasel is "Gangster"

The real gangster of the wild is the weasel. From the time that the little folk of woods and fields are getting ready to enter into the winter, until they go into the nest building and family rearing of the spring and summer, they must watch out for this sly fellow.

The fact that the weasel, small as he is, is a valuable fur-bearer has caused man to trap and destroy him. Otherwise, he has few enemies.

The plains of Michigan are kind to their wild folks. The leaves of the oak, cling long into the winter and are brown and stiff. It is among these leaves of the scrub oak that a deer can vanish like a spirit. The rustle of the oak leaves make an accompaniment to the whisper of the pines.

One morning the sky will be grey and lowering, and the wind whips down from the north in a fury. Or the sky is quiet and grey, and large flakes of crystal snow falls upon the waiting world. King Winter has arrived.

The last flock of geese has swept through the snow laden skies, on their way Southward. A few belated stragglers may become lost in the snows, and you may hear their honk-honk-honk some night as they fly around, getting separated from their leader, and often lured by the electric lights of some village or city, landing in the streets, in the heart of town.

Rest In Villages

Wild geese and ducks will often come to rest on some small lake within a village limit, for they seem to realize that they are safe here. Many a proud gander has lost his life when he flew into a telegraph wire.

Farmers report that wild geese often spend the night in a corn field or in a winter wheat field, eating and resting. At Germfast, in Schoolcraft County, Upper Michigan, a wild fowl haven, a government project, has many geese and ducks nesting, and rearing young, on the ponds.

United War Fund Backed By Kelly In Proclamation

Lansing, Oct. 18 (AP)—Governor Kelly today proclaimed the remaining weeks of October and the first two weeks of November as United War Fund Weeks, and urged that the people of Michigan give generously to this campaign for funds for war relief agencies. Michigan's quota in the nation-wide drive is $5,749,425.

A "compassionate, freedom-loving people," he said, will give to the limit of its means.

The proclamation:

"We are now called upon to provide another great war-time service . . . one whose appeal is straight to the hearts of parents, relatives and other well wishers of our men in the armed forces, and to the hearts of all who hold a genuine sympathy for their fellow-men. During the remaining weeks of October and in the early weeks of November, cities and counties throughout the state will conduct a United War Fund Drive to raise $5,749,425, Michigan's share of the National war fund quota of $125,000,000.

"The USO, United Seamen's Service War Prisoners' Aid and 14 major war relief agencies which look to the war fund for support, are providing invaluable off-duty recreational facilities for millions of American service men and women, giving aid and comfort to countless war prisoners and destitute victims of Axis barbarism.

"In many communities, social work agencies on the home front, ordinarily financed by local campaigns, will be combined with the war fund drive.

"Because of the great importance and the urgent need for these services, I Harry F. Kelly, Governor of the State of Michigan, do proclaim the remaining weeks of October and the first two weeks of November to be United War Fund Weeks. I strongly urge that, as compassionate, freedom loving people, the citizens of the state support their local city and county war fund campaigns with the utmost generosity."

Hull And Eden Reach Moscow

in parade step down the runway past the visitors.

Molotov was accompanied by Maxim Litvinoff, vice commissar of foreign affairs and former Russian ambassador to the United States; V. G. Dekanozov, another vice commissar of foreign affairs, other officials of the foreign commissariat and representatives of the Red army general staff at the reception.

While Red air force fighters flashed overhead, Hull's plane came down first on the broad grass runway.

The 72-year-old secretary stepped out none the worse for wear after an arduous trip of about 14,000 miles from Washington.

He was accompanied by Harriman, the new U. S. ambassador's daughter, Kathleen, and civilian and military advisers. He was met by Maxwell Hamilton, who has been the charge d'affaires since the departure of Admiral William H. Standley, and the full staff of the U. S. embassy.

After a brief talk Moltov and Hull drove to the embassy.

Eden's plane, after circling the field, landed soon after Hull's.

Russian cameramen ground constantly during the reception and for the first time foreign correspondents were authorized to attend a ceremony in the military section of the airdrome.

Chinese Break Up Japanese Stab Up From North Burma

Chungking, Oct. 18. (AP)—One of three Japanese columns, driving north in western Yunnan province in an attempt to forestall a Chinese move south into Burma to join a possible allied offensive from India, has been broken up and forced into scattered retreat, the Chinese high command said today.

(On the West Burma front, a British communique from New Delhi reported a successful land attack Saturday on the Japanese-held town of Maungdaw on the Burmese coast about 100 miles northwest of the important port of Akyab. The communique also reported a number of diversionary raids.)

On the eighth army front fighting was reported raging through the streets of Montecilfone, 10 miles southwest of Termoli on the Adriatic. Field reports said enemy resistance was increasing all along that front.

British and American engineers have won tributes from allied commanders for speed and efficiency in reopening communications routes and constructing facilities to handle the constantly mounting allied strength on the peninsula.

Allied heavy bombers from the Middle East attacked Maritza air field on Rhodes and Cos harbor in the Dodecanese and Syros harbor in the Aegean yesterday. Bombers and fighters of the Northwest African force continued to rake the enemy's communications behind the fighting line in Italy. Three allied planes were missing from all operations.

Landmark Burned Near Three Rivers

Three Rivers, Mich., Oct. 18 (AP)—The "Plantations," $25,000 wayside tavern just north of Three Rivers, which was a southwestern Michigan landmark because of its distinctive 40-foot pillars and southern architecture, was destroyed by fire this morning.

Flames spread through the structure following an explosion in an oil stove. The building was erected 100 years ago by E. S. Moore, founder of Moorepark and at one time president of the old Grand Rapids and Indiana railroad, now a division of the Pennsylvania railroad.

In recent years it has been operated as an eating house and roadhouse by Mrs. William De Bolt of Battle Creek.

FALL NOT FATAL

Belding, Mich., Oct. 18 (AP)—William Hessler, 65, who recovered from pelvic injuries last week in a fall from a tree, died today at his farm home as a result of a heart attack.

NEED DOLLARS FOR WAR FUND

21 Drives In One Means Contributions Must Be Larger

The need for impressing the people of Delta county with the fact that several dollars, not one dollar or a few cents, is needed from each contributor in the United War Fund drive now under way was described yesterday to solicitors of the business section committee which will begin making their rounds today.

Merton Jensen, chairman of the Escanaba campaign committee for the United War Fund, Gerald J. Cleary, county campaign chairman, and John A. Lemmer, Escanaba superintendent of schools, all stressed the necessity for larger contributions. They talked at a meeting of the business section committee held yesterday afternoon in the Delta hotel.

The county quota for the United War Fund drive is $30,000. This quota includes the USO and 16 other war relief agencies, and the Salvation Army, Boy Scouts, Campfire Girls and a county cod liver oil fund. Because 21 drives are combined in one campaign, it is necessary to obtain larger contributions if the quota is to be met.

Persons who have given to the various agencies in the past are asked to total their past contributions and give not less than that amount for the War Fund. Combining the 21 appeals in one drive will make unnecessary for the solicitors to call again month after month in individual drives.

The quota for the business section of Escanaba has been set at $4,000. The businesss section committee of the War Fund is composed of:

Ralph Olsen, Frank Raack, Cordie Kincaid, Leonard Moreau, John Gagnon, Emerson Harvey, Percy Rubens, Norman Stephenson, William King, Ben Sparks, Horace Provo, John Owens, Dewey Meunier, Claude Murdock, Britt Hall, Walter Dickson, Harry Gruber, Dan Schweitzer, Morgan Hall, John Boyle, John Manning, Capt. Milton Anderson, Tony Wahl, Ed Hengesh, August Gafner, Art Kamrath, Jack Bennett and George Marcouillier.

Last night preceeding the appearance of Ely Culbertson at Town Hall, Superintendent Lemmer spoke briefly, again stressing the need for generous contributions, and a short War Fund sound moving picture was presented.

Culberston Sees World Peace Under Federation

Earnestly, humorously, pleadingly, Ely Culbertson, wizard of the bridge table, last night pointed the way to world peace in an address to the Escanaba Town Hall at Wm. Oliver Memorial auditorium.

The auditorium was filled to capacity and the audience, bridge fans or otherwise, listened attentively to a talk that frequently startled the imagination with its possibilities for the future of the world.

The man who made the name of Culbertson a by-word for bridge players of the world, sought in his talk last night to arouse equal enthusiasm for the organization of world peace groups—he quite frankly called them pressure groups — which would meet, study peace plans, reject all but concrete proposals, and urge governments of the world to accept one which they deemed most worthy.

URGED TO CHECK IN

Members of the Town Hall ticket sales committee are asked to check in with Harry J. Gruber, treasurer, as soon as possible this week. It is hoped that a complete check on Town Hall finances will be made before the end of the week.

Culbertson was introduced by Charles Gessner, who described him as a man of international background. Culbertson was born in Russia, the son of an American mining engineer and a Russian girl, daughter of a Cossack general. For flouting Czarist rule he was imprisoned, escaped death because of his youth and the fact that he was an American citizen, came to this country "completely ruined by the Bolsheviki," as he described it last night.

Outline For Peace

In the Russian prison camp he took up cards as a pastime, and turned to cards in this country as a hobby. That he became famous for his bridge playing was not his fault—his heart and mind were devoted to a passionate study of mass psychology and international social policy.

Briefly, if one can be brief with such a subject, the Culbertson plan for a world federation for peace, an international government, is this:

1—Creation of a world federation in which all nations would be represented in eleven regional federations, none losing their sovereignty, but each agreeing to disarmament to a certain degree compatible with world peace plans.

2—The world federation or international government would have a president, senators from each region, a court. Only function of this international government would be to maintain peace.

3—Establishment of a world police force to maintain peace.

Threat To America

While this outline is over-simplified to the point where many questions are necessarily left unanswered, all of the possibilities in the plan were explained by Culbertson last night. It was his contention that such a plan is workable and that it can be established if America places itself behind the plan and demands action. Culbertson believes that other and perhaps better peace plans will be advanced and if they are they should replace his plan.

In the first half of his talk Culbertson touched on subjects which, it is anticipated, he will cover fully in his forthcoming book, "Total Peace," to be released by the publishers in November.

This was an explanation of the two opposing thought factions in this country; and the prediction that America, unless preventative peace steps are taken, must weaken and fall as a world power within the next score or more years.

"Fatal inner defect" of America are the opposing divisions of thought which mould policy—the nationalists and the internationalists, he said. The nationalists first seek security for our own country; the internationalists seek to assure peace through world cooperation.

Must Include All

Both would be satisfied with his world federation plan, Culbertson declared. In his proposal, this country still would be powerfully defended in the Atlantic and Pacific, goes even beyond the expressed wishes of the nationalists, yet it also provides for a collective system of defense and an alliance for peace.

He warned against this country's becoming a party to a British-Russian-American alliance to the exclusion of other countries. It would breed only trouble greater than no alliance at all, he said.

Industrial development has made this country the most powerful in the world. It has become a nation whose wealth and power are coveted. The industrial program is spreading, will reach and make powerful such countries as China and India. Russia's industrial development is still under way. America can not long remain the most powerful under such circumstances, will be forced into a test of power unless international peace is organized now.

Preceeding the speaking program a concert was presented by the senior high school a capella choir directed by Paul Bowers.

Mather High Will Conduct V-12 Tests

Munising, Oct. 18—The second qualifying test for the Army Specialized Training Program and the Navy College Program V-12 which will be given throughout the country on Tuesday, November 9, will be administered at the Mather high school, R. W. Jackson has announced. A pamphlet of general information which contains an admission-identification form may be obtained at the high school. This form properly filled out will admit to the tests students between the ages of 17 and 21 inclusive who are recent high school graduates or who will be graduated by March 1, 1944. Intent to take the test should be made known immediately to Mr. Jackson in order that the necessary test supplies may be ordered.

The same examination will be taken by both army and navy candidates. The examination is designed to test the aptitude and general knowledge required for the program of college training and all qualified students are urged to take the test. At the time of the test each candidate will be given a choice of service preference, but taking the test does not obligate the candidate to enlist in the service.

The Army Specialized Training Program and the Navy College Program enable students to continue academic training at government expense following induction into the armed services. Successful completion of the prescribed courses may, following further officer training, lead to a commission in the army or the navy.

Those selected for the army will, after further screening and basic military training, be sent to college. Students chosen for the navy program, after selection by the Office of Naval Officer Procurement, will be detailed directly to college. Students who attend college under either of the programs will be under military discipline on active duty in uniform with pay. All expenses, including tuition, food, housing, books, and uniforms will be paid by the army or the navy.

He Had What It Took

NO MATTER how vociferous may be our disagreement with policies of the Office of Price Administration and no matter how vigorously and sincerely we may condemn the acts of both omission and commission of that federal agency, most everyone will have to admit that former Senator Prentiss Brown, of Michigan had what it took to save that bureau from complete disintegration. When high officials of the bureau were resigning in droves and even the CIO was demanding the resignation of the former senator, he stuck to his guns and pretty well "held the line". Not that the rules of OPA have become less onerous or more easy to understand, much of the turmoil of the early battle, to rid the bureau of its head man, has subsided. With the appointment of a deputy director of ability, much of the load has been taken off the shoulders of Mr. Brown and he is quietly preparing to resign.

Former Senator Brown was appointed by the president to succeed Leon Henderson, as OPA director, because of his political experience, in the hope he might be able to at least take the edge off congressional criticism off the bureau. In that Mr. Brown has succeeded to a considerable degree. He has performed the service expected of him and he can now retire with affairs of OPA in better shape than when he took over.

It is rumored in Washington that the former Michigan senator is to be rewarded for his service with one of the most juicy political plums at the disposal of President Roosevelt, by appointment to a berth in the Federal Reserve Board. And that's all right, for most everyone who does anything for the New Deal usually gets paid for it and the president owes more to Mr. Brown than to most lame ducks he has singled out for reward in the past.

No Extra Gas

REFUSAL by the OPA to allow extra gasoline for deer hunters in Nevada is accepted by an indication that there will be no chance of getting extra consideration for the hunting season in Michigan.

Lower Peninsula hunters, who usually travel from two to five hundred miles northward across the Straits of Mackinac to get their bucks, had been hoping they would be able to obtain some extra gasoline for this purpose. The argument in their favor, they thought, was that the extra venison would relieve the wartime meat shortage.

Upper Peninsula residents, however, will be able to enjoy their deer hunting sport without undue strain on their supply of gasoline coupons. For them, it is only a matter of going from five to 25 miles away from home to fill their licenses. There are also many deer inhabiting the northern counties of the Lower Peninsula, which will be hunted by many who previously came north to the Upper Peninsula.

The prospects are for heavy hunting in the Lower Peninsula deer country, not so far away from the war factories that dot the industrial area below the Saginaw-Muskegon line. Some Upper Peninsula residents likely will welcome the respite from the invasion of the hunting army from below the straits, for it will mean more chance of getting deer for themselves and less risk of woods accidents. But it will mean less dough in the cash registers for the backwoods merchants, who have always done a brisk business during the deer hunting seasons of the past.

Italy As An Ally

ITALY'S formal declaration of war on the Axis is not being received with complete jubilation among the Allies, recent developments indicate.

For one thing, the Ethiopians have not forgotten the rape of their country by Mussolini's legions, commanded by the very same Marshal Badoglio, who now appears to have been able to switch his role as an enemy to an ally of the United Nations without much difficulty. Emperor Haile Selassie, who regained the Ethiopian throne lost to Mussolini after the British conquered the Italians in 1941, has proclaimed that his government will not recognize Italy as a co-belligerent.

The true patriots of France also cannot forget that Italy stabbed their country in the back in her darkest hour when Hitler's armies were marching into Paris. British soldiers, who fuoght Italians in North Africa, also have expressed surprise to find their defeated enemies still holding forth in Italy, with the support of the Allied military governments.

It does not make sense to a lot of people. Of course, the Italian people, themselves, have had only hatred for the Nazis, while they have always had a high regard for the Americans and British. They probably should not be blamed for the treacherous acts that Mussolini and their other leaders have committed.

The fault lies with the Allies who allow turncoat Fascists to remain in charge in Italy. General Badoglio, for instance, was too long associated with Mussolini to be anything but the object of distrust. Confidence will come only after the old Fascist crowd is cleaned out, and the prodemocratic forces in Italy are given an opportunity, with encouragement and support from the Allies, to establish a new government.

Ceilings Put in Line

ALL forest products appear to be greatly needed for the war effort at present, and when the Office of Price Administration attempts to increase production of one item by raising the price ceiling the unfailing result is that output of another item decreases.

A case in point was the lifting of price ceilings on pulpwood recently. Pulpwood production was stimulated, but it was soon discovered that jobbers were getting out fewer excelsior bolts, which formerly were at the same competitive price level.

This discrepancy was remedied last week when the Office of Price Administration increased ceilings on excelsior bolts about 25 per cent to put them in line with those established for pulpwood in their respective logging areas.

The war has given new life in the excelsior industry. During the last quarter century, the number of excelsior plants has been steadily declining, largely because of the competition of substitutes, such as shredded paper, specially-designed cartons and cotton packing materials. At one time, there were excelsior plants at Rock and elsewhere in the peninsula, but these were closed some years ago. Factories have continued to operate at Marinette, Oshkosh, Rice Lake, Wis., and other parts of the country, however.

Just now there is an active demand for excelsior to provide protection for shipments of war goods overseas. Without this resilient, protective material, many articles would arrive in the fighting zones broken and unfit for use. So excelsior has come unto its own, for the duration of the war, at least.

A LOOK AT A LAKE
(Chicago Daily News)

The rivers and harbors committee of the house of representatives has taken up proposals for allowing a greater diversion of water from Lake Michigan. It's been a long time since we have seen the rivers and harbors committee mentioned in the news. There was a time, however, when it was just about the hottest committee in Washington, after ways and means, and appropriations.

The rivers and harbors committee had somethin gto give the boys when congressional "pork" consisted mainly of dams, locks and dredging, with a few star routes and RFD's on the side. Oh, yes, your congressman also mailed you packages of garden seed, but this element of statecraft long since disappeared. Perhaps expected harvests of votes failed if the seeds didn't come up.

Anyhow, we rejoice to hear again those dulcet words "rivers and harbors committee," once as musical as a convention of hog callers. And while we are on the subject let us suggest that the committee be invited to come to Chicago and look at Lake Michigan. One look now should be worth a thousand pages of testimony to prove that the poor old lake has got to have help to keep from drowning itself.

AND THE RASH BREAKS OUT
(Milwaukee Journal)

It is no mere coincidence that a rash of isolationism and what amounts to obstructionism breaks out at the same time that he five senators who toured the war zones make their report.

Gerald L. K. Smith, the rabble rouser and a director of the America First party, trots out the old bogey of British control of American politics. Count on Gerald not to miss a bet. Congressman Hoffman, who helped to mislead the Mackinac Republican meeting and then said of its milk and water resolution, "As an America Firster, I think it is a fine report," comes in with that other bogey about "destroying our way of life." And all the isolationist newspapers become gleeful.

Not that there was necessarily a connection between the senators and this campaign. But the isolationists knew that some of these senators were sure to come out with criticism or proposals that would make ammunition. So the propagandists were ready.

This is what makes it extremely difficult to criticize the war effort constructively, no matter how badly such constructive criticism is needed. Anything that is said will be twisted by those who seem to think more of attaining their own purposes and justifying their own positions than they do of meeting America's situation. They were just sitting and waiting for something to fall in their lap.

SWASTIKA AGAIN

From Cincinnati: Will you please repeat the correct pronunciation of SWASTIKA, and tell us what significance the emblem has to the Nazis?—V. B. C.

Answer: Do not say "swahsTEE-kuh." The second syllable accent has no sanction. Stress the first syllable only.

First choice: SWASS-ti-kuh
Second choice: SWAHSS-ti-kuh

In Germany the Swastika is called HAKENKREUZ, pronounced: HAH-ken-kroits. The literal meaning is "hooked cross."

On pages 736-37 of his book, MEIN KAMPF (My Battle), Adolf Hitler writes: "In the midsummer of 1920 the new (Nazi) flag appeared in public for the first time. And a symbol it is indeed! In the red we see the social idea of the movement (National Socialists), in the white the national idea, in the swastika the mission of the fight for the victory of the Aryan man, and at the same time also the victory of the idea of creative work which in itself is and always will be anti-Semitic (anti-Jewish)."

There are scores of picturesque and amusing origins of familiar expressions in my new pamphlet, just out this week. For example, "behind the eight-ball; the real McCoy; bury the hatchet; poor as Job's turkey," etc. The material has been carefully compiled from reliable sources, and the pamphlet should be a valuable reference for home, office, and school. For a free copy, send a stamped (3c), self-addressed envelope to Frank Colby, in care of this paper. Ask for FAMILIAR EXPRESSIONS Pamphlet.

Fair Enough

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

Pegler

New York—The prospect that the war production board will forbid the manufacture of liquor until the war is over is disquieting, to be sure, but should not discourage a people who still include many resourceful survivors of the long rebellion against the hated amendment. Bootleggers, turned to unioneering, a field in which they are beginning to feel some heat, would be welcomed back in their old role of public servants and, while their products doubtless would be crude at first, still, with their old experience, they should be able to provide from the very start, much better dramming than those with which the veterans of the early '20s offended their interiors and refuted some of the most venerable medical theories. The early hooches and the ports and sherries were hurriedly improvised by green and groping hands and some of them contained too much creosote and burnt sugar and pepper and paint in poor proportions. Time, experiment and experience served however to produce improved recipes so that when repeal came with virtuous liquors, bedight with authentic revenue stamps and labels, the customers at first found them slightly insipid.

—SOME 'LEGGERS STILL LIVE—

It should not be thought, either, that all the old bootleggers are dead, in prison or busy in the defense of labor's gains, for the members of one fine old house of smugglers who ran down liquor from Canada and cut it up for wide circulation in the United States, have remained and grown in the legalized liquor trade and could, and doubtless would, give their fellow-men the benefit of their old wizardry. They would require, of course, some of the raw materials which are on the proscribed list or otherwise hard to get, such as radiator fluid, sugar, varnish and lye but men of the type who outwitted Wayne Wheeler and Ibby and Moe, would be equal to any new problems which would be, after all, only variations of their old ones.

Applejack, now almost forgotten, had become a gracious beverage by 1932 and even now, in a time of war, shortage and rationing a vast tonnage of apples is rotting beneath wild and neglected trees, wanted only to be gathered, pressed and further processed by the method which by 1926 had given the rebels jersey lightning to sustain them in their fight. The Mexicans make several kinds of high-octane drinks out of various types of cacti which also abound in Arizona, New Mexico and Texas and we have also peanuts, berries, dandelions, potatoes, prunes and parsnips from which the people of other lands have distilled more or less nutrious and exhilarating drinks down through the ages. The cactus liquor may be a little trying at first for Americans, who like theirs with plenty of power, and tourists on the yonder side of the border have been known to yell "fire" and dive out the windows at their first experience with such. But any people who could get used to the mange cures and shoe polish that the Americans learned to relish under the rule of Bishop Cannon would soon adjust themselves. After all, our people drink chablis made with syrup and sulphuric acid. We developed our resistance to a point at which we would not refuse a consignment if the chemist's report said there were mere "evidences" of the presence of lead or steel filings, and no wife was really a good housekeeper who could not go out in the kitchen and whip up a batch of gin when company came.

—WASHINGTON HAD BEST—

Of all the hooches, Washington had the best, something called Maryland Corn, which came in mason jars, by taxi, promptly when phoned for, and a price no worse than the presen. cost of lawful merchandise; and Kansas the worst, that paralyzing draught called Jake. In between there were many grades and varieties, drawn from tanneries, silos and insecticide factories but we proved that we could take them and, with the advance of science since repeal, they doubtless would be less hard to take again.

As this threat becomes more serious, the subject of the health of Al Capone will become one for public solicitude. Is he well, does his old organization still exist in skeleton shape or better, and has he done anything about passing on his secrets and mysteries to those who may be called on, in the name of humanity, to take up where he was compelled by an ingate nation to leave off?

STRAITS BRIDGE—The anticipated debate on construction of a bridge across the Straits of Mackinac—anticipated by the U. P. Development Bureau and avoided by Charles M. Ziegler — failed to materialize at the Bureau's post-war planning conference held last week at Blaney Park.

Dunathan

While proposals to construct a bridge at the Straits have been viewed as political by some, Commissioner Ziegler's negative attitude toward the project had aroused quite general alarm throughout the Upper Peninsula. The Development Bureau stepped into the breach, an action for which it should be highly praised. Commissioner Ziegler says that he was "misunderstood," and in a prepared statement delivered to the meeting by a deputy, indicated that "additional study is warranted before the construction of the bridge at the Straits is undertaken."

It must be admitted that Mr. Ziegler was in somewhat of a spot on the bridge project. Perhaps he had not considered carefully enough the intense interest in the project above the Straits. But why he did not attend the meeting is hardly understandable. He was at St. Ignace only a few days prior to the meeting, stayed at the Ellsworth cottages on a bird hunting trip.

To say that he was too busy, or that his presence was required in Lansing would be contradictory after the hunting episode. And besides, Gov. Kelly considered the Blaney meeting important enough for him to be present and to deliver a forceful and wisely considered message on the future of the state's tourist business.

TOURIST LODGES — Commissioner Ziegler also informed the meeting, in his prepared statement, that he "favored less elaborate tourist information lodges such as were erected by his predecessors and hoped tourist associations would take over the operation of them," according to the Associated Press report.

Again the state highway commissioner is treading on ground which he may find untenable. It may be necessary for him to say later that he was "misunderstood."

For the state highway department tourist lodges, admittedly expensive and comfortable, have proved to be one of the most popular of all highway department facilities provided for the tourist —aside from good highways, the roadside park and picnic table.

There is such an information lodge at Menominee, southern gateway to the Upper Peninsula. It has been closed because of the wartime drop in travel, but it should be reopened—and under state highway management — when the war ends. The future of the tourist business in Michigan is dependent on good highways, and adequate tourist accommodations. The tourist information bureau is one of these accommodations.

Commissioner Ziegler's proposal to turn operation of the lodges over to the tourist associations has been answered in part at Blaney Park in an address by Governor Kelly, who said:

"Fully realizing that the Upper Peninsula has many problems which are peculiar to the area which could and should be considered on a peninsula basis, I point out to you that your No. 1 industry—the tourist and resort business—does not fall into this category. On the contrary this highly-important and lucrative industry, which has taken first place for the past 12 years in your promotional activities, is a part of and should be considered on a state-wide basis. Conceding the necessity for the four resort bureaus in the normal conduct of regional affairs, I still want to impress the value to each of a correlated plan for state-wide postwar activities."

TO THE FUTURE — Post-war planning was the principal objective of the Blaney Park meeting. Frankly, The Bugler had looked upon it beforehand with considerable misgiving, yet the results have been worthwhile.

Much credit for this favorable reaction goes, so far as The Bugler is concerned, to Governor Kelly. He did not lose sight of the fact that when that longed-for postwar period comes, only governmental units (state, county, city) will be in a financial position to sponsor post-war projects. It is anticipated that some federal aid will be available to assist in financing such projects, and it is doubtful that associations such as the U. P. Development Bureau could be recognized as project sponsors.

Therefore Gov. Kelly suggested that in planning projects relating to the tourist industry, the four tourist associations of the state name committees advisory to the state planning commission.

Governor Kelly used the word "state-wide basis" several times in his talk. Apparently he feels the state is going to have to carry the financial ball on a good many tourist industry projects in that postwar period, and believes that by approaching the problem from a "state-wide basis" each section of the state will receive fair and equal allotment of projects.

The sounding of such a note in these times is refreshing, because it cuts across all of the geographical and political lines of the state and makes them null and void. Post-war planning of that kind is basically sound and honest.

Michigan is a state and the Upper Peninsula is an important part of it. The governor recognizes this and has expressed himself forthrightly that no section of the state shall receive postwar benefits at the expense of another.

—Clint Dunathan.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON

Washington—Sage heads among the diplomatic corps figure that the peace of the world for the next 20 to 50 years will be decided during the next three months. Specifically, they believe that at the Moscow Conference of Foreign Ministers, the die may be cast as to whether our children will have to fight Germany (or possibly Russia combined with Germany) again in twenty years.

Pearson

But if Great Britain, Russia and the United States — the three most powerful nations in the world — can work out a collective security pact, agreeing to protect each other and keep the peace, then there is good reason to believe this war may see the end of major wars for some time to come.

The meeting at Moscow, however, will not be easy. Here are the obstacles it faces:

1. Russian territorial demands.
2. Russian suspicion, plus the fact that she has been given the run-around on a 2nd Front in Western Europe and many other diplomatic moves.
3. Russia now holds the balance of power in Europe.

—WHAT RUSSIA WANTS—

Russian territorial demands were first expressed to Anthony Eden when he went to Moscow in February 1942, shortly after Pearl Harbor. The British were quite ready to accept them then, in fact virtually did accept them. But the United States stepped in and said NO. Since then Russia has put forward her demands again. They have not changed much. Here is what Russia wants:

a. All of the Baltic states — Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania.

b. A slice of Finland—more or less the boundary won by Russia after the Finnish-Russian 1940 war.

c. Half of Poland, including the city of Lwow.

d. All of Bessarabia, plus about half of Buchovina in the heart of Rumania.

e. A tripartite commission — Turkey, Britain and Russia—to guard the Bosphorus.

Several of these are likely to raise unshirted hell with American public opinion —particularly with the Polish vote in Chicago, Milwaukee, Buffalo, Detroit, to say nothing of those who would point out that we started the war to save Poland and now we would give half of Poland to Russia.

—ONCE RUSSIA WANTED ALLIANCE—

It will be a good argument, but it will have definite drawbacks. It is reported that in 1942 Russia asked us for just such a military alliance and Roosevelt turned it down.

That was when Russia was suffering crushing defeats in the Ukraine, losing 300,000 men in a week, seemed certain to lose at Stalingrad, and was definitely a poor risk. The Russians then wanted a pact to insure that the U.S.A. would help them get their territory back. But apparently it looked to Roosevelt like a tough proposition to get through the Senate. The answer was No.

Today the situation is reversed. Today Russia is on the taking end, not asking. Once Germany is defeated she can take almost anything she wants. Her armies are moving toward the gates of the Baltic countries. If she marches on we are not going to send an army to stop her.

Furthermore, Russia now finds herself in a position unique in her history. She holds the balance of power in Europe. She holds the position Britain held for more than a century.

For years the English Channel gave England a sufficient degree of protection so that from her isolated position she could jockey France off against Germany. Britain's basic policy was "balance of power," so she could throw her weight with either nation when it suited her.

—ENGLISH CHANNEL SHRANK—

Today, the airplane has shrunk the English channel. But Russia has proved (to both Napoleon and Hitler) that her vast prairies cannot be invaded. Russia now has the isolation Britain once enjoyed; now can play the power politics Britain used so successfully.

Obviously Russia's power politics strategy would be to balance Germany off against England, leaving the Soviet the the master of both.

Already the Russians have played the cards cleverly to this end. They have a definite German policy; we have not. After capturing the top officers of the German 6th Army at Stalingrad, the Russians proceeded to woo them. With them, they have now organized an "Officers' Corps" inside Russia.

The German Officers' Corps in the days before Hitler was the ruling force in Germany. They never cared for Hitler, used him only as a political tool. Knowing that, the Russians are building up German forces friendly to Russia, first in order to destroy Germany from within, second to create a pro-Russian sentiment in Germany later. This may be the beginning of the new Russian role of balance-of-power.

The United States might also play the balance-of-power game if the White House was not so closely tied to Churchill; for we enjoy even greater geographical protection than Russia.

However, our role at Moscow will be to woo Russia away from her balance-of-power role into a collective security pact. It will be a tough job, especially for Secretary Hull, who does not understand Russian temperament and who has already aroused Russian suspicions. However, the Russians are also realistic. They know that while an alliance with Great Britain is an old story, an alliance with the United States means real strength.

They may surprise everyone and accept.

Russian Artist Club Speaker On Wednesday

Miss Eugenia Smetisko, Russian artist, will be guest speaker on the program to follow the opening luncheon of the Escanaba Woman's club which will be held Wednesday afternoon, October 20, at one o'clock at the Sherman Hotel.

Miss Smetisko, who has lived in the United States since the first World War, will speak on "Russia Before and Now," describing her native country and showing colored historical and scenic slides.

She was born in a village near Leningrad but spent her summers in the Crimea near the czar's palace. She has travelled in nearly every country in Europe and collected art objects from Roumania and Russia, especially. After her parents were assassinated in the revolution, she lived in Roumania and Yugoslavia before coming to the United States. She has been back to Europe several times, the latest being five years ago.

She is especially interested in Russian art, churches and religion, architecture, costumes and nationality types. Her slides, which number into the hundreds, include gardens, points of interest in the Caucasus, Crimea and Siberia, as well as the historical and architectural scenes.

Having lived and travelled in the Balkans, Miss Smetisko has a deep understanding of the history and phychology of the mountain Slave, "a people with a deep love of peace and intense hatred of all that disturbs it," as she puts it. Her interpretation of Russian geography, history and ideals is intended to give her audiences an appreciation of the factors influencing the present war. Her talks are informative and interesting without any propaganda.

Now an American citizen, Miss Smetisko fled from Russia in 1918. At present she lives at Fontana, Wis. She actively supports the British, Norwegian, Yugoslavia, Greek and Russian relief campaigns.

October's Bright Blue Weather Brings Beauty

PARADE OF SEASONS—PART 12

By Fern Berry

As September slips away into October, we scarcely realize that another month has arrived. The mornings are hazy with mist which veils the hills in mystery. The shrubs are clad in cob-web lace, be-decked with jewels, which disappear as the sun reaches down with greedy hand. Still gay by the roadsides, are the goldenrod and asters. The sumach, a splash of color on the hillsides. Down by the swamps and lakes the larch is yellowing, and as we walk among the pines we see where some careless hand or some freak of nature has wounded the tree and it has shed amber tears; which when pried loose are woodland gems.

The great blue heron stands in the very edge of the roadside stream, a slate-blue statue. Soon he will be gone on his flight to warmer shores.

One fine morning we find the world alight. The hills have caught the flaming color of the sumach and the gold of the witch-hazel. The maples', red and gold, are like the subdued lights in some well appointed home. The oaks, crimson, the maples scarlet and gold, green and coral. The beech, the poplar and lesser shrubs dressed in their best party raiment, ready for that last big party before the North wind bids them be about stern duty.

Dazzling Color

For a fortnight the picture is a dazzling one. So much of bright beauty that we fail of appreciation. Then—one crisp fall morning the oaks are russet instead of crimson. They are now a perfect magic curtain for concealing the deer and the many woodland sprites of the oak plains. The little brown creeper whose feet are almost in-visible as he travels over the tree trunks searching for the larva and eggs of the insects, the nuthatch follows in a search of the lace frilled oak trunks, the chick-a-dee and the woodpecker the bluejay and the squirrels all feel safe within this magic room, shut away from the big world by the stiff brown oak leaves.

October days are cooler. Sunny days have changed into a snowy night. The big pike, over their sulk, bite like hungry hounds and fishermen bundle in warm clothing and fish from boats.

The ferns, like children, resentful of being put to bed early, stand stiff and green as the leaves swirl and drift about them. The forest is an interesting place in October. Half tucked away are the small growths but the Princess pine marches down the aisles of the wood in proud distain of snow or cold. The violets and hepatica and mitrewort plants are still green, and the stumps and knolls show in the low places. The fields are grey with pearly everlasting and birds cling to the ripened stalks of mullein in a last feed before starting away on their southward journey.

In the woods the boom of the hunter's gun tells of peril to the grouse and pheasants and cottontail rabbit.

The goldenrod and asters lift grey, wooly heads to the first snow storm, to be dressed in ermine and be-decked with frost crystals.

Nature Study Opportunity

The nests of the summer birds stand out in the de-nuded trees and offer a good opportunity for nest study. The wild waterfowl take a terrible punishment at the hands of hunters. Overhead the wedges of wild geese stir within us a wild desire to be off and away. Roving flocks of evening grosbeaks are seen from time to time throughout the autumn and winter. They will not stay long in one place, and follow the food supply.

You will be surprised to see here and there a little lake in the woods and swamps as the foliage drops away. Like a treasure, the leaves have kept it hidden all during the summer. In the marshes the leather-leaf and spaghnum moss stand up sturdily to meet the first snowfall. The many rare and beautiful orchid-like plants found blooming in the leatherleaf marshes are well protected by the moss during the winter. Here the sheathed cotton grass grows and sheds its tiny round balls of cotton upon the late autumn breezes. Children love to gather this "play cotton".

The muskrat is snug in his lodge, the beaver is still busy at his wood cutting and food getting.

The loon, late at leaving his little woodland lake, sends his crazy laughter across the quiet body of water. Perhaps he has not seen a human being all summer, so well hidden is his lake.

Bees are snug in their hollow trees, rock cavern, or behind the roof of some un-suspecting farmer's buildings.

Although the nights are frosty, the days are bright and clear, and the snow which falls occasionally is quickly melted into little pools. The fields, green where fall grains are growing, or sere and brown where hay or crop has been harvested.

"A Great Hawk Soars"

Overhead a hawk, late, also, at leaving, soars on powerful wings, looking, looking, for the movement which tells of a mouse, a rabbit or a lizzard.

"Over the fields,
First low, then high
In the misty blue,
Of October's sky.
A great hawk soars.
Silvery and graceful is his flight
And the small birds tremble
And quake with fright.
And the field-folk quickly
Hide from sight.
As the great hawk soars."

—Author.

In the forest the leaves have drifted into the hollows, and the sunlight filtered through the bare branches of the trees, falls in strange patterns. The rustle you make as you walk through the fallen leaves scares a grouse, and she flushes with a loud noise in this dry, crisp forest.

The North wind is a stepmother. She commands her children to lie down and sleep, un-like the gentle southwind which woos with gentle singing, and bids her children arise. Nevertheless, she is obeyed.

Few Birds Remain

The October woods seem quiet, for no longer the little black and white warbler, the blackthroated blue warbler, the indigo bunting, the red-start and tanager, the very red eyed vireo, the ovenbird and the hermit thrush, sing and flit about all day. Only the little brown creeper, the nuthatch, the jays and the woodpeckers remain of that great company of gay bird-folk.

"The road before us stretches,
A sodden ribbon, grey.
With wayside grasses tufted,
With snow and frozen spray.
The trees rise tall and mighty,
Their branches grey and stark
Upstretched to meet the lowering sky,
And greet the early dark."

The family includes all persons related by blood, marriage or adoption who regularly live in the same house. It also includes members of the family who are temporarily away from home but who expect to return within sixty days.

HOW TO FILL IN APPLICATION for War Ration Book 4—Here's how you will apply for your book 4 during the latter half of October. Applications may be obtained and filled in, and books received at designated points in your city.

Ration Book 4 Will Be Distributed At Schools Beginning Next Monday

The distribution of Ration Book 4 will be made in Escanaba next week, starting Monday afternoon, at the local public schools, it has been announced by Supt. John A. Lemmer.

The registration pattern is the same as that for Book Two, with the city divided into zones for the purpose of registration and distribution of the new ration books. Registration hours will be from three o'clock to 9:30 p. m. daily, Monday through Thursday. All public school classes will be dismissed at three o'clock during those days so that teachers may be released to serve as registrars.

The registration districts are as follows:

Franklin school—east of 10th street, from the northern end of 10th street to Lake Shore Drive.

Barr school—west of 10th street, south of Fifth avenue south and in addition the four blocks between Fourth and Fifth avenues and between 10th and 14th streets.

Jefferson school—south of Ludington street and north of Fifth avenue south and west of 10th street, excepting the four blocks indicated above.

Washington school—North of Ludington street, south of the E&LS tracks, and west of 10th street north.

Webster school—north of the E&LS railroad tracks.

As far as possible, the public is asked to register at their proper registration sites in the following order: Persons whose last names start with A to D, inclusive, register on Monday; E to K, inclusive, register on Tuesday; L to P, inclusive, register on Wednesday, and Q to Z, inclusive, register on Thursday. In cases where it is inconvenient to register on the designated day, or at the designated registration site, registration may be made on any of the four days or at any registration site.

Particular emphasis is placed upon the fact that it is necessary to have Book Three before Book Four may be received. Registrars will be unable to distribute Book Four to anyone who does not already have Book Three.

Since Book Three is not available at local war price and rationing boards, it is necessary to make application to the OPA mailing center for Book Three. These applications, however, may be made at the rationing board, from where they are sent to the OPA mailing center. On the average, it requires about two weeks to receive Book Three after application has been made. Following the receipt of Book Three, application for Book 4 may be made at the rationing board.

Fathers In Service Get Protection From Debts

(Editor's Note: With general drafting of pre-war fathers begun, those with low draft numbers are asking about protection given their families while they're away. Here is the first of three daily articles dealing with servicemen's rights and privileges concerning civilian obligations.)

BY WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST

Washington, Oct. 17 (AP)— So you're going to be drafted, Dad.

How about the family financial obligations while you're away? Those payments on the house and the automobile? And your insurance premiums?

Think you can keep all that up on a buck private's $50 a month, plus the comparatively small amount Uncle Sam will kick in to keep your family going while you're fighting?

With the drafting of pre-war fathers an actuality, members of Congress are being asked by worried fathers with low draft numbers to furnish the answers to those questions.

The answers, or most of them, are down in black and white on the law books. Generally speaking, they should save some gray hairs for anxious dads.

Civil Relief Act

More than a year ago, when it began to seem inevitable that men with families would be called to the colors, Congress went to work to ease the financial blow.

Recognizing that the average draft-age father has had his nose to the grindstone so long buying shoes and clothes for the kids that he hasn't been able to save up enough to survive a long period of reduced income, Congress last year enacted the Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act of 1942.

Rep. John Sparkman (D-Ala.) —he's a father—intended it to be the answer to a drafted father's prayer when he headed a military sub-committee that wrote it.

It amends a similar 1940 law and was planned to give relief to servicemen of World War II along the same lines as provided during World War I. It should not be confused with the allowance and allotment act under which the government adds to payments a serviceman makes to his dependents.

Where the allowance and allotment act furnishes the money, the Civil Relief Act is intended to see that the money is retained by the dependents for living expenses.

The law applies to all members of the armed services, regardless of rank, and, in general, to their dependents.

It doesn't cancel any obligations or debts but is a type of moratorium providing for suspension, in proper cases, of the enforcement of a serviceman's civil obligations. It maintains the status quo utnil the soldier comes back from the wars and has a chance to get on his feet financially.

Here are some of its high spots:

Your family (assuming you are a service man) cannot be evicted for non-payment of rent, if the rental does not exceed $80 monthly, without permission of a court. The court may suspend execution of an eviction order for three months, even though no more rent is paid, or may make "such other order as may be just."

Protection or Foreclosure

Just what "such other order" may be is a matter on which the courts haven't agreed. One court has held that a stay of execution for longer than three months is allowed.

Similar protection is given against foreclosure for non-payment of mortgage installments on a home. In a mortgage case the court may order a sale or it may grant a stay of foreclosure. The property owner, or mortgageholder, is protected by being allowed to apply for relief from payments for taxes, insurance, and so on, if he depended on the serviceman's payments to meet these obligations.

As in the case of other obligations, the court must take cognizance of the serviceman's ability to pay.

No foreclosures on automobiles, furniture or other personal property being bought on the installment plan may be made without a court order, and when such an order is granted, the foreclosure must make an equitable settlement with the buyer, based on an appraisal made by three disinterested parties.

Interest at 6 Per Cent

Payments on notes, loans, etc., to banks and loan companies may be suspended for the duration and three months beyond the date of discharge of the payer if the debtor is a serviceman and makes application for relief.

Interest accrues at not to exceed 6 per cent a year, and the unpaid principal remains an obligation against the serviceman. Relief also may be obtained by a co-maker or endorser.

The government guarantees payment of premiums on a serviceman's private insurance up to an insured value of $10,000, the policy to be restored to good standing within two years after discharge. This protection does not interfere with the man's right to buy up to $10,000 of government insurance.

At any time within six months after his discharge, a debtor may apply to a court for additional relief in the form of extension of the time for repaying accrued obligations.

The act gives the courts wide discretion in handling cases of service men.

Either because of ignorance of their rights or because of ability of debtors to reach agreements with their creditors without resort to it, the act has not been resorted to as extensively as one might expect in view of the millions of persons eligible.

Creditors who helped congress write the law report that most debtors are known to be good risks when a loan is made, and try to work out an agreement with the debtor before invoking the law.

"Accounts that were good before military service will be good after induction, but some adjustment may be necessary to meet reduced income," a spokesman for one large organization told Rep. Sparkman recently.

"Character does not change when a man lays aside his civilian clothes and puts on a uniform."

The first American Declaration of Independence was signed at Charlotte, N. C., in 1775.

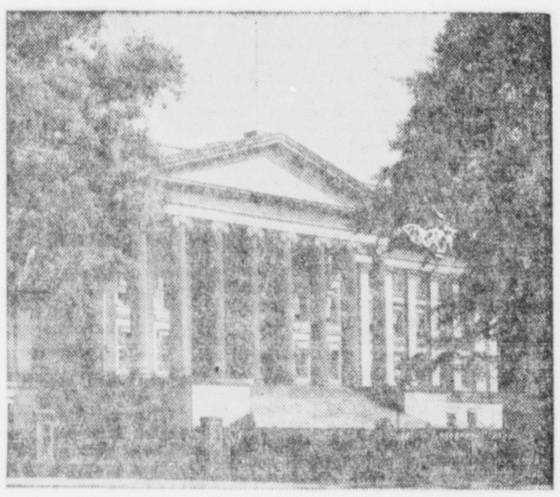
Why should I buy War Bonds?

Some answers to a question every one of us should ask

1. The Government has figured out that, to pay for the planes, tanks, ships, and other tools of victory we need, you and everybody else should put at least 10 percent of his pay into War Bonds.

That's the main reason for putting at least a dime from every dollar into War Bonds. But here are some others:

2. Every $3 you invest in War Bonds will return you $4 in 10 years. Simply from a cold-blooded financial viewpoint, no more surely profitable investment was ever offered to anybody, anywhere.



3. The United States Treasury is the world's safest place to put your money. War Bonds are just like money in the bank. They earn more money for you. A War Bond is a "promise to pay" backed by the world's strongest Government.

4. Suppose you lose the Bonds. Suppose they're stolen, or burned. You do NOT lose your money. Every Bond you buy is registered in your name at the Treasury Department. NOTHING can prevent you getting your money back—with interest.

5. Your War Bond money will help keep prices down! There are already fewer things to buy. And, as the President said, "If people with plenty of cash start bidding against each other for scarce goods, the price goes UP!" Put your money in War Bonds—and help keep prices down!

6. Some day this war will be over! Then—there will be plenty of the things you want to buy. Your money will go farther. And if you've bought War Bonds, you'll have the money to get more of all the things you can't buy today!

7. The best way to buy Bonds? Through the Payroll Savings Plan! It's a safe, sure, automatic way to make you save regularly—to help you accumulate the money for a comfortable, independent old age, for putting a child through college, for traveling, for buying a home or a farm.

GAS STEALING RING BROKEN

One In Jail; Others Are Investigated By City, State Police

Recovery of a stolen bicycle Saturday led to the arrest of another man on charges of stealing gasoline, and as a result a gas stealing gang in this city is being broken up, state and city police announce.

Serving 30 days in Schoolcraft county jail is Orville Ledger, 18, of this city, who admitted stealing gasoline on several occasions of late. Specifically, he was charged with taking gas from a tractor and car belonging to Charles Hancock, lumber mill owner of West Manistique. Ledger admitted being with a gang behind the Liberty Cafe at the time it was broken into more than a month ago.

Ledger's arrest came as a result of city police finding a bicycle owned by Michael Minkoff in the possession of Edward Bradley, 25, of this city. Bradley said he took the bicycle on October 14 from where it was standing beside a business building. He took it home and painted it black. Considerable questioning by police resulted in Bradley admitting taking the bike, and also admitting information relative to gas stealing. As a result, Ledger was apprehended and arraigned.

Ledger, who formerly was employed by Hancock, offered enough information to involve a number of other men, police report. Investigation will continue and no doubt the gas stealing ring will be completely dissolved in the near future, they said yesterday. Numerous complaints have reached the police from all sections of the city to the affect that gasoline is being syphoned, apparently from automobile gas tanks.

Strikes Man In Mouth With Glass; Gets $50 Fine

Charged with being the offender in a bloody, dance hall brawl, Samuel Burns of Germfask paid a $50 fine and costs of $5 after pleading guilty to assault and battery charges in Judge W. G. Stephens court Monday.

Burns admitted striking Richard Decker, the dance hall ticket taker, in the mouth with a beer glass. Decker was severely lacerated about the mouth, requiring the services of a physician in Manistique. Considerable loss of blood occurred, police report.

Decker told police that he could not figure out why he was accosted, unless it was because he had just previously asked some youngsters to leave the hall. Burns may have been offended at that, he said, but the blow came without warning.

WET SNOW SUN. CAUSES DAMAGE

Power Line Broken; And Many Trees Ruined By First Snowfall

A heavy, wet snowfall, the first of the season here, resulted in damage to electric power lines, trees, and bushes in the Manistique area Sunday night.

Residents of part of the west side of the city were without electric current early Monday as a result of a power line breaking. A telephone and light pole and other light wires in the city were said to have been damaged by falling branches from trees.

Many beautiful shade trees were ruined when wet snow, piling on the branches and leaves, snapped off entire limbs. Most of the trees in this area still have their leaves, and it was thought that this made a big surface on which the wet snow clung.

Several inches of mushy snow made walking difficult for pedestrians, and driving on the highway hazardous. Local police had no reports of accidents up to noon Monday.

Schools Lost $58 on Soo Game Sat.

A penetrating north wind was believed responsible for the poor attendance at the Manistique-Soo football game here Saturday which resulted in a financial loss to the school of $58.70.

Only the more ardent fans saw fit to "shiver it out" for the entire game inasmuch as the local aggregation was on the losing end of a 27 to 6 score.

High school principal Carl Olson reported after the game that expenses included $75 guarantee to the Sault, $36.60 for officials, $13 for advertising and tickets, or a total expense of $124.60. Receipts in ticket sales amounted to $55.40 at the gates, and $10.50 advance ticket sale to students, or a total of $65.90. This represents a loss of $58.70.

Next Saturday the Emeralds will travel to Marquette for their final game of the season. To date they have lost two games and won three games.

CRISLER HAVING A TRYING WEEK

Michigan Coaches Sure Gopher Game Will Not Be Pushover

BY JERRY LISKA

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 18. (AP)—This is a trying week for Michigan's Fritz Crisler and his coaching aides.

They have to convince the Wolverines that all wasn't as dark as it looked when they took that 35-12 lacing from Notre Dame a week ago, and also that Minnesota isn't making the trip to Ann Arbor Saturday solely to turn the Little Brown Jug over to the Michigan keeper of the vaults.

The Gophers' 13-7 victory over Camp Grant last Saturday doesn't look as impressive as Michigan's 26-0 romp over the warriors—on paper.

But Line Coach Clarence (Biggy) Munn, scouted the Minneapolis contest, and had an observation which Michigan State partisans can understand. Coach Charley Bachman's Camp Grant team, Munn said, is vastly improved over the warrior eleven the former Spartan mentor had under his wand only a few days before it faced Michigan. Bachman teams are noted for their November strength.

The Gophers, according to Munn, played a tremendous defensive game against the well-conditioned Camp Grant team which was constantly pressing toward pay dirt in the closing period. Munn described the Gopher line as a 200-pound wall with plenty of speed and aggressiveness. Behind it Coach George Hauser has a quartet of fast, smart backs, headed by Bill Garnaas, 185-pound veteran quarterback.

"Minnesota is a lot stronger than we had expected," Munn declared. "They have a lot of poise, and simply were under-rated by most observers."

He said in Paul Mitchell, 217-pound tackle, the Gophers have a key lineman to match Merv Pregulman, bulwark of Michigan's forward dyke. Mitchell played 60 minutes against the warriors.

Two former Michigan players were in Minnesota's starting lineup Saturday. One was right halfback Chuck Avery, who galloped 14 yards after taking a lateral for one of Minnesota's touchdowns. The other was Brick Waldron, a fullback, who had his chance when Hoyt Moncrief, transfer from Tulane, was called home by family illness. Avery and Waldron played most of the game.

Ticket officials reminded fans planning to attend Saturday's game that the new kickoff time is 2 p. m. Eastern War Time, half an hour earlier than usual. They also announced that high school and elementary school youngsters throughout the state may attend the game at a reduced admission price of 55 cents.

Notre Dame Nov. 6 Game Is Sell-Out

New York, Oct. 18 (AP) — The Army-Notre Dame football game, ripening into one of the prize plums of the 1943 grid season, already is a sellout although it will not be played until November 6.

A joint announcement by the athletic associations of the two schools said this was the earliest date the ticket sale ever had been closed although the contest always has been a sellout.

As usual the game will be played in Yankee Stadium, which seats approximately 72,000 persons.

ESKYMOS IN RETROSPECT

The Eskymos lost to Iron Mountain Saturday and blew their chances for the upper peninsula football championship. Reports from Iron Mountain indicate that the Eskymos lost the battle, not so much because of their own ineptitude but rather because the Mountaineers drove with the fury of a woman scorned. The Mountaineers were laying for the Eskymos this time and they were the better team on the field that day.

At first glance, the result may appear to be a startling upset. The Eskymos, for instance, crushed Norway, 33 to 7, and the Vikings spanked Iron Mountain, 15 to 0. That leaves a 41 point margin that theoretically should have been ample to carry the Eskymos through, even on a bad day.

Fortunately for football, however, it's not that kind of a game. By using Norway as a yardstick for determining the relative strengths of the two teams, one gets an answer all out of proportions to the actual facts. A better comparison, of course, is the first Escanaba-Iron Mountain game, played here on Sept. 18. The Eskymos won that one, 13-7, and that one touchdown margin would be offset entirely by the advantage of playing at home.

Vulnerable Defense

As any football fan knows, comparative scores are at best a very poor method of appraising comparative strengths of football teams. There are too many other factors involved, factors that are not always indicated by the comparative scores.

The inherent weakness of the Eskymos all season has been a relatively vulnerable defense. Because the team played a smashing offensive game and produced the power to make it good, the team's offense made the defense look much better than it really is. That was evident at Iron Mountain. When the offense fell apart, so did the defense and the Mountaineers barged through for two touchdowns in the final period.

It will be interesting to watch the developments in the Marinette game next Saturday. The Marines, like the Eskymos, are offensive-minded but they, too, appear to be vulnerable defensively. It should be a high scoring game, with the Marines very definitely having the edge upon the basis of season's records.

Incidentally, when Escanaba lost to Iron Mountain Saturday, it brought an end to an eight-game winning streak. The last setback suffered by the Eskymos was in the Kingsford game a year ago, the Flivvers winning, 7-0. Escanaba went on to win the three remaining games on the 1942 schedule and carried through with five consecutive victories this year. It was the second time in 55 games dating back to October 11, 1936 that Escanaba was held scoreless. On that date, Escanaba lost to Menominee, 3-0, and then scored in 45 consecutive games thereafter before being whitewashed by Kingsford. They missed a scoring change in that game because of a first down fumble on the one-yard line. Then they won eight more games before losing to Iron Mountain in the ninth game Saturday. Incidentally, in the 56 games played by the Eskymos since Oct. 11, 1936, they won 52.

Is there any wonder that teams get a lot of satisfaction from licking the Eskymos? It happens so seldom.

Hunting And Fishing

By Sid Gordon

A CITY GUY GOES HUNTING

He'd never shot a gun, never killed a squirrel nor a rabbit, yet he wanted to go hunting, so I took him to the woods. It was the 29th of September, 1943.

His name was Leo and he had come up north to spend a week in our country. When I drove up to the house to pick him up, anyone could tell he was from Chicago.

He came down the walk wearing a pair of tan, silky pants, a light shirt sort of pinkish and open at the neck. He wore an ordinary pair of city oxfords and carried a sort of a foolish packet which would get wet two or three days before the rain.

"Just what do you think you're going to hunt, in that outfit, Leo?" I asked. "What have you got?" said Leo. "Well," I answered, "the best sport in the woods is grouse, the best on the lake is the mallard shooting until the northern ducks come down."

"Let's go hunting grouse," said Leo. When I asked him where his gun was and if he had a license, he said he didn't need either of them. If I would bring him to the woods he'd take care of everything.

I couldn't figure it out but I put the car in gear and away we went. We hadn't driven over a mile from town, hardly out of the city limits, when he asked me to stop a minute.

"What is that mass of red color there, what do you call those bushes?" he asked. When I told him that was just common ordinary sumach, green in summer, now colored by the heavy frosts to every shade from scarlet to maroon, he stood still just looking at it.

"Sid," he said, "it really is beautiful, but what good is it?" When I told him that it helped prevent erosion by growing on sandy, windswept hilltops, that it furnished a little shade for the grasses and winter food for the birds, he seemed satisfied to let it stay there.

He looked at the sloping, sandy hillside and said, "What are those low, dark green bushes?" "Crush one of the leaves in your palm, Leo, smell of it and you'll see why we call it 'Sweet Fern.'"

"What good is it?" asked Leo. I explained that it was a wonderful shrub for it covered the cut-over, burnt over, pine lands in the very driest, sandy soil. "Just as those brakes there furnish cover only in the summer for the birds, this plant gives cover all summer and food until the snow flies," I said.

Then he got back in the car. "Let's get on with the hunting," said Leo. I had hardly gotten the car in third gear before we came to a swampty stretch. 'Stop a minute," said Leo.

"Do you see some birds?" I asked. "No," said Leo, "I just want to look at those Christmas trees." "Look here, Leo," I said, "don't you call them Christmas trees up here or they'll think you're a hick from the city."

'How is that?" said Leo. "There are no such things as Christmas trees," I said. "That tree there is a spruce, next to it a cedar, those thin needled trees there are tamarack, sometimes called larch. They use the spruce for Christmas trees but it has a dozen commercial uses worth far more than Christmas trees, when mature timber."

Up over the ridge, we came to a stretch of jackpine and scrub oak. There were some birch, aspen and a thin scattering of white and red, or Norway pine.

"Wait a minute," said Leo. "What do you call those Christmas trees?" "It would sound a lot better if you called all those green needled trees evergreen trees," I said.

"Those short needled evergreen are jackpine, the long needled are Norway or red pine and the medium needles are white pine," I said and proceeded to drill him until he could tell me in one quick glance, each specie.

He admired the duller reds of the changing oak leaves and the contrast of the yellow leaves of the aspen and the birch but when we came to the hardwood belt, he gasped.

I really had no explanation as to why that soft green leaved tree was a maple, and why the bright red trees next to it was also a maple. Nor could I tell him why the next tree, a mass of changing color, was a maple.

He had me stumped when he asked why they didn't all color the same if they were the same species. I stammered something about exposure, the sun's rays hitting them at one angle and the frost at another.

Maybe I got away with it but when we came to the edge of a great bluff, sat down in the sun and overlooked miles of water, it was getting toward "candle lighting time" before we left for home.

Having covered all of four miles on this trip, when he stepped out of the car at home, I was surprised to hear him say, "It was a grand hunting trip, Sid." Only then did I remember the gun in the back seat.

GAME FIGURES ARE CORRECTED

Score Still Stands But Statistics Give Eskymos Break

Corrected statistics on the Escanaba - Iron Mountain football game, which the Eskymos lost, 12-0, give the Ruwitchmen a better break than statistics previously reported, which were in error.

The corrected figures show that Escanaba made 10 first downs, all earned, against nine for Iron Mountain, two of which resulted from penalties. Iron Mountain made four first downs by rushing, three by passing, and two by penalties. Escanaba made seven first downs by rushing, and three by passing.

Previous reports that the Eskymos failed to connect on a single forward pass were erroneous. The Eskymos connected four times on 16 attempts for a total of 45 yards and three of their tosses were intercepted. Iron Mountain completed three passes in nine attempts, also for a total gain of 45 yards. One Iron Mountain pass was intercepted.

Iron Mountain punted 10 times for an average of 37 yards and Escanaba punted six times for a 31 yard average.

The Mountaineers were penalized four times for 30 yards and the Eskymos five times for 35 yards.

On the basis of net yardage, the Eskymos outgained the Mountaineers, 136 yards to 122.

PACKERS TAKE 33-7 LICKING

Washington Gives Bays Bad Pummeling At Milwaukee

Milwaukee, Wis. Oct. 17 (AP) — A hard charging, efficient Washington football machine handed the Green Bay Packers the worst beating they have taken in a decade, 33 to 7, in a national Professional Football league game before 25,000 today.

With Sammy Baugh pitching passes as only he can throw them and Andy Farkas leading the attack on the ground, Washington completely dominated the play as it outcharged and outfought a sluggish Packer eleven that seemed never able to get up steam.

The vaunted Green Bay forward passing game wasn't even a threat. At only one stage of the game, that late in the final period when the Redskins had a 33 to 0 lead and most of their regulars on the bench, were the Bays able to connect with a scoring pass, a long toss to Don Hutson.

At every other stage the Redskins left no doubt as to their superiority. They smothered and rushed Packer passers and covered the receivers so well that Green Bay was able to complete only eight of 29 passes. Hutson was covered so efficiently that he caught only one pass—the scoring toss. Washington's passing game, on the other hand, was great Baugh, who played all except the last seven minutes of the game, completed 14 passes, including four for touchdowns.

BEARS WHIP EAGLES, 48-21

Chicago, Oct. 17 (AP)—The Chicago Bears remained undefeated for the season and took the lead in the western division of the National Football league today by pulverizing the Phil-Pitt Eagles, 48-21, in a bruising game which featured Sid Luckman's three touchdown passes and scoring runs of 96 yards by Dante Magnani and 81 yards by Harry Clark.

The Bears, mixing a crushing ground attack with aerial artistry, pleased a crowd of 21,744 by scoring in every quarter, jamming four touchdowns into the second period to command a 35-7 halftime margin. Luckman ran his touchdown pitching total to nine in four league games and contributed 174 yards in 12 out of 18 completions.

The Bears' Bob Snyder booted six extra points, to come within in one of matching the league record in a single game.

The Phil-Pitt combine, losing its first game in three starts, scored on the second play of the game when Roy Zimmerman speared Ernie Steele for 60 yards. Magnani took the Eagles' kickoff and returned it 96 yards for the Bears' first tally—14 points being scored in the first three minutes.

HOPP SCORES DETROIT GOAL

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 17 (AP) — Harry Hopp's 70-yard run with a screen pass from Frankie Sinkwich in the third period gave the Detroit Lions a 7-0 victory today over the Chicago Cardinals in a National Football league game in Buffalo Civic stadium before 15,072 spectators.

One 10-foot Board Makes Colonial Fireside Bench

By DONALD R. BRANN

Have you often needed a bench you could sit on, stand on or use as a coffee table? The fireside bench illustrated above answers nearly every need. It can be made in a few hours and costs only the price of one 10-foot board, the pattern and a few screws.

The full size pattern is traced on the board; then sawed and assembled. Assembly illustrations show exactly where to fasten each piece and exact location of all screws. It's so easy to make you'll surprise even your best friends with your ability as a carpenter.

Only a screw driver, saw, brace and bit and plane are needed. A bit of stain and it's all ready for use. The simplicity of its design also makes it ideally suited for use on porch or in the garden.

Reds-Dodgers Feud Lasts To Bitter End

BY JUDSON BAILEY

New York, Oct. 18 (AP)—Ford Frick, president of the National league, says it is no laughing matter, but other baseball men have been having a lot of fun since the end of the season by passing along the tale of the final game between the Cincinnati Reds and Brooklyn Dodgers.

The game itself, played at Cincinnati October 3, didn't mean anything because the Reds already had clinched second place and the Dodgers were sure of third.

Yet it developed into a bitter feud, still smouldering, because the Reds sought to establish a double play record and the Dodgers tried to keep them from it.

According to statistics kept by the Redlegs, they started the game with a total of 191 double killings, three short of the record for a season they set in 1928 and equalled in 1931.

In the first four innings of the finale with the Dodgers Cincinnati uncorked two double plays and tried to get a couple more in the last half of the game. But the Dodgers had a different idea.

Whenever a Brooklyn runner reached first, the "steal" sign was flashed to him on the next pitch, said a formal complaint filed with the league by Warren Giles, general manager of the Reds. The Dodgers chose to sacrifice any prospect of winning the game, he argued, just to forestall any chance Cincinnati might have had of setting a new record.

In rebuttal Manager Leo Durocher of the Dodgers bellowed, "how about that Vander Meer walking guys in the late innings just to set up double plays? I suppose that was trying to win the ball game."

Anyway, you get the idea of the kind of fracas the finale developed into.

Frick said today that he had not yet received reports from the umpires, Lou Ballanfant and Larry Goetz, but that he regarded the incident as serious and would make an investigation of Giles' protest.

"I don't know what can be done about it now," he acknowledged.

Breaks Two Ribs In Room 2-Thirteen

Florence, S. C. (AP)—Director J. C. Todd of the state Probation and Parole Board denies that he's superstitious. He just doesn't like the number 13, and here's why:

Todd and Assistant Director J. Curtis Moore registered for a hotel room, It was No. 213. Todd protested. "I've never slept in a room with a 13 in its number in my life," but Moore scoffed.

Todd, former football coach at Erskine College, gave in. The next morning, up early, he dashed into the shower, slipped on the wet tile and fractured two ribs.

TRADING LIGHT ON STOCK LIST

BY BERNARD S. O'HARA

New York, Oct. 18 (AP)—Demand for specialties served as an offset for profit taking in most of today's stock market leaders.

Mild irregularity prevailed at the start. Closing gains and losses of fractions were about evenly split although a few isolated favorites jumped 4 points or so. Dealings were relatively light throughout.

The Associated Press 60-stock average was unchanged at 50.4. Of 763 issues traded, 280 were up, 279 down and 204 unchanged. Transfers totalled 540,645 shares compared with 555,600 in the previous full session.

American Distilling was a star performer, climbing 4 3-4 points to a new 1943 top partly in response to reports the company had greatly improved its financial position. Western Union also touched its best level for the year but finished up only 1-8 of a point. Laclede Gas preferred rose 4½. Morris & Essex advanced 2¼ as talk was heard of Lackawanna making more favorable terms with some of its leased lines of which M. & E. is one.

The majority of the rails slipped as a batch of 8-months' operating figures confirmed the impact of mounting taxes on net.

Modest improvement was exhibited by American Telephone, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet, Sears, Roebuck, Caterpillar Tractor, Douglas Aircraft, American Can, Texas Co., American Cable & Radio, Paramount Pictures and Johns-Manville.

Dow Chemical dropped 1½ and it was announced later that the concern planned a new issue of preferred stock.

On the offside were U. S. Steel, N. Y. Central, Southern Railway, Pullman, Chrysler, General Motors, U. S. Rubber, Boeing, Allied Chemical, Anaconda, Kennecott, Westinghouse, Montgomery Ward, Philip Morris and International Harvester.

Minor plus marks were atached to such curb issues as American Gas, Cuban Atlantic Sugar, Glen Alden Coal and American Light. Turnover here was 123,495 shares versus 133,375 last Friday.

BONDS STEADY

New York, Oct. 18 (AP)—Medium priced rail issues and some industrials made progress in a generally steady bond market today.

There were scattered new highs for 1943, including Commercial MacKay Income 4s at 108½, up 6½ points, Rio Grande Western first 4s at 85, up 1½, and New Orleans, Texas & Mexico 5½s at 72½, up a point.

Ahead major fractions to a point or so were Missouri Pacific 4s and 5s, Manati Sugar 4s, Louisville & Nashville 3 3-4s and 4s, International Great Northern 5s and 6s, Duquesne Light 3½s, North Western 3½s, Rock Island 4s and Burlington 4½s. Delaware & Hudson 4s, firm most of last week, were in supply along with some of the Lehigh Valley loans.

U. S. governments and most of the investment rated corporates were less active but most trades were effected at fractionally higher levels.

Argentine 4½s, Australia 5s and Chile 6s were among foreign loans making headway.

Sales of $9,923,600 were around the best in several weeks and compared with $9,738,100 last Friday.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Chicago, Oct. 18 (AP)—Distilling and feeding demand for wheat, coupled with a broader commission house interest, gave the bread cereal gains ranging to about a cent today. Rye was up with wheat, but oats displayed independent weakness on expanding marketings. Barley declined.

The market opened strong when an unusually small number of selling orders entered the pits. Buyers were forced to bid steadily higher prices. When December wheat reached $1.57, however, a fair volume of selling was uncovered and the market backed down. Prior to the close another sharp upturn developed.

At the finish wheat was 3-8 to 1 1-8 higher, December $1.56¼ to $1.56 1-8, May $1.54¼ to $1.54 1-8; rye was up ½ to 1 5-8, December $1.13 3-4 to $1.13 7-8; oats were ¼ lower to 3-8 higher and barley closed 1 1-8 to 1 3-4 lower.

Parent-Teachers Meet

The Parent-Teachers association of the Bark River school met Thursday evening. The meeting opened with the Flag Salute and singing of "America, the Beautiful". The various reports were read and approved.

The unit chose as its theme for the year, "Adjusting the Child to New Changes". It was voted that the school conduct a Hallowe'en carnival October 30th. Mrs. John Rheaume was named as chairman of the committee with Mrs. Raymond as co-chairman.

A moderate donation was approved for the 4H Sewing Club to be used for the purchasing of needed material. The PTA will again sponsor the Cubs and John Anderson was voted as leader.

Twelve new members were enrolled by the organization. C. P. Otus and R. A. Raymond spoke on the arrangement of the Hot Lunch Project.

LUMBER PRICES ARE INCREASED

15% Boost Authorized By OPA As Result Of Higher Wages

Iron Mtn., Mich. Oct. 18— Increases in ceiling prices of Northern hardwood and Northern softwood lumber—designed to compensate producers for higher wage costs resulting from wage increases for lumber workers approved by the War Labor Board in July—were announced today by the Office of Price Administration.

These increases are as follows:

In Northern hardwood lumber, a 15 per cent increase in maximum prices of standard grades of all hardwood species, except timbers; increases of 50 cents and $1 per 1,000 board feet in certain millworking charges, and an increase of $1.50 per 1,000 board feet in kiln-drying charges.

In Northern softwood lumber, an increase of $5 per 1,000 board feet in maximum prices of standard grades of all softwood species,except timbers, and additions of $1 and $1.50 in certain millworking charges.

The increases, OPA said, are the equivalent of an increase of 14.5 per cent in sales realization for mills, and are sufficient to restore the operating margin over cost obtained by the bulk of producers in the final quarter of 1942, or just prior to the effective date of War Labor Board approved wage increases for some mills. (The basic wage increases were 12½ cents per hour, 2½ cents per hour of the increase being retroactive to January 14, 1943.)

The new prices replace the temporary 10 per cent price increases for both Northern Hardwood and Northern softwood lumber which were granted by OPA in August, 1943 pending issuance of today's upward revision.

"On July 9, 1943, the Director of Economic Stabilization approved an award by the War Labor Board increasing by 12½ cents per hour wages paid by certain logging and sawmill companies in Michigan and Wisconsin," OPA said.

The Roving Reporter

By ERNIE PYLE

Editor's Note: Here is another of the favorite Ernie Pyle columns of past years, which are being reprinted during Ernie's vacation. He wrote this one in 1938.

Honolulu— The mid-afternoon sun was hot on the beach at Waikiki. On the sands and under the umbrellas of the Outrigger Club there was a rich laziness.

Men, deeply tanned, lay in the heat. Women in bright bathing suits dug toes into the sand. Somewhere behind the palm Hawaiians were singing.

Doris Duke was there. And her husband Jimmy Cromwell. And a princess or two. It was a beach scene out of Esquire—correct tan, dark glasses, bright trunks, leisurely ease, poise.

But suddenly people sat up and stared. Look! What fantasy is this? What be this odd human contraption come into our exclusive midst?

Four dark Hawaiians carried a yellow outrigger canoe toward the water. Behind them strode a huge Hawaiian— six feet and then some, great chest, muscled arms and legs, darkly brown. A figure as natural on Waikiki as the surf itself.

And behind this magnificent specimen minced an embarrassed, spindly ghost. A veritable Milquetoast of the beach. He couldn't see over the Hawaiian's shoulder. His skin was as white as writing paper. His knees didn't come together, and his arms were muscleless. He wore a common white undershirt where other men wore big raw chests. And around him dangled borrowed red trunks, far too big. He stepped awkwardly in the deep sand.

The rich beach crowd sniggered. Funny little man. Funny little hothouse man—no chest, no tan, no muscle, probably couldn't even swim. What a sight!

The big Hawaiian was Duke Kahanamoku, the great swimmer. And the awful contrast trailing behind him was, as you may have guessed—me, in person. Me, wanting desperately to get under water and drown.

The canoe was built for four. Duke called to a beautiful girl on the beach, and she came running with a little child. They piled in, for ballast and the ride. I never did know who they were. He put me right in the nose. He sat in the stern.

We paddled out, against the surf and into the sun. Crossing the rollers, the prow of the canoe was left high, and would fall to the water with a smack. It was good to get away, away from the beach crowd. We must have been half a mile out when finally Duke turned the canoe around.

"Now we'll wait for one," he said. "And when I say paddle, you paddle hard."

We sat there for many minutes in the sun, talking idle. A few canoeists and surfboat riders lay waiting also, but not very close.

Suddenly Duke dug in excitedly and yelled "Paddle!" We did, and the canot started to move. "Paddle! Paddle hard!" Duke yelled. We clawed at the water. "Paddle hard!" Duke yelled. We labored, the girl and I. There was a roar of rushing water behind us. "Paddle harder!" yelled Duke.

Then suddenly I could feel the stern lifted. The prow rug into the water with a showering splash and the little boat trembled all over. And then we were off, as though someone had pulled a trigger and shot us out of a gun. Going like the wind, riding shoreward on a roaring downhill of white water. No need for oars now.

"Lean over toward the outrigger," yelled Duke. We were already leaning. It was a thrill. The air whistled past. The white comb of surf under our stern raced to overwhelm us, but bore us ahead of itself, just out of reach.

Duke sat hugely in the stern, his paddle dug edgewise into the water alongside, making a sort of rudder. The ride lasted maybe a minute, maybe less. Gradually we slowed. Duke hunched the canoe onward; you could feel the jerks when he humped forward. Finally the wave died and passed beneath us and the canoe floated quietly again, a hundred yards from shore. We paddled seaward again.

Half a dozen times we made the round trip. Sometimes we'd have to wait five or ten minutes for the surf to break. Once all four of us got out of the canoe and played around in water over our heads. We hung onto the outrigger, for only Duke could swim.

Each time I'd try to judge just when Duke, watching seaward, would yell "Paddle!" But I never could tell. Always, when we started stroking, the water behind us seemed smooth and motionless.

But we'd paddle fractically for five or ten seconds and then I'd see the wave break on the reef, yards back of us, and start piling up its white crest, and in a few seconds it would be half under us, shooting us along before it.

I'm not sure whether the afternoon of riding the nose of an outrigger on the roaring surf was worth that awful march through the lounging society of Waikiki or not.

I guess maybe it was worth it. For when it was over, and we strode wetly back across the sands. I had somehow grown an inch or two, and possibly gained a few pounds, and I couldn't hear anybody laughing.

I even helped Duke carry the canoe. And I guess that in just a couple of days now I could be a cat on a surfboard and stand up all alone, graceful and bold, waving my thin white arms.
